Memorial Park tennis courts back in service

The courts had been out-of-commission since they closed in 1997 to allow the temporary relocation of Albany High School

ALBANY — The number of tennis courts in the city has doubled thanks to a restoration at Memorial Park.

The Memorial Park tennis courts have been out of commission since 1997, holding portable classrooms while Albany High School was being rebuilt.

The classrooms were removed last year. The four courts have been given a facelift and have brought the number of courts in the city to eight.

The tennis courts have been resurfaced, with new lighting, fences and token boxes that can be used to turn the lights on. Tokens are available at the city's community center, 1249 Marin Ave.

"The lighting is better and the surface is better," said parks and recreation commission member Alan Riffer. "And there are a lot of improvements even though the number of courts has stayed the same."

Riffer added the courts would benefit residents who have been going outside the city to play.

A few members of Albany High School's girls' tennis team practiced Tuesday after a ribbon-cutting at the refurbished tennis courts.

The girls said members of the team have been driving as far as Alameda to practice. The 20-member team was also practicing on two courts at Terrace park.

"Having this is really a big advantage, and I think having four courts instead of two is better for our team," said sophomore Nat Chaichana.

The new courts are "really nice compared to other schools," sophomore Michelle Her added.

The portable classrooms sat on the tennis courts from 1997 to 2001. Construction work began on the courts last year.

The restoration cost $160,000. The Albany Unified School District spent $114,000 on the restoration as a condition of using the area for its classrooms. Some $46,000 was paid for by the city's lighting and landscaping assessment district.

The two north courts are regulation size, meaning officially sanctioned tournaments can be played there. The two southern courts are not, because the space between the courts is too small.

Still, the four courts will be good for recreational or high school tennis, said Riffer.

"It's a beautiful day and great for the community, and hopefully we'll get lots of use," Riffer added.

Albany police chief chosen from within

■ Lt. Greg Bone beats seven finalists to be the city's first appointed chief

By Alan Lopez

ALBANY — Albany Police Lt. Greg Bone will be inaugurated in October as the city's first appointed police chief.

Bone has been with the department for 25 years and was chosen by the City Council on Sunday over seven other final candidates.

"The switch-over was done in a very professional, deliberate manner and I'm absolutely elated that the council chose to come back inside (the department)," Bone said.

Albany was one of two cities in the state that elected their police chiefs, before residents voted to change the city charter in 2001. Bone will be the city's first appointed chief.

Bone, a Moraga resident, was raised in Berkeley, El Cerrito and Kensington. He joined the Albany Police Department in 1977, after developing an interest in criminal law while attending law school at UC Berkeley.

He served as a patrol officer and detective until 1986, was an administrative and patrol sergeant from 1986 to 1991 and was promoted to lieutenant in 1991, supervising the department's patrol division and serving as a city staff member to the traffic and safety commission.

As chief, Bone said he wants the department to listen to and get more involved with the com-

Native legacy lies beneath paved Bay waterfront

■ Panelists in Richmond seek preservation and respect for the Bay's last few remnants of Ohlone shellmounds

At the end of a lane in San Pablo, near the left bank of San Pablo Creek, an apartment building stands on top of a small hill. Children play and skate in the parking lot, oblivious to what's under their house.

To Chuck Striplen, an Ohlone, underneath that building is an "ecological library — layer upon layer of recorded history of my people's interaction with the environment."

Archaeologists know it as one of hundreds of Ohlone shellmounds in the East Bay that have been leveled for development over the last century.

The shellmounds, some of which date back to 3,000 BC, consist of layer upon layer of shells, plants and other food debris as well as tools and other artifacts, usually near bodies of water, that chronicle the life of the Bay Area's early inhabitants.

Moreover, "almost all contain burials, sometimes hundreds and hundreds," said Kent Lightfoot, a UC Berkeley anthropologist.

Striplen and Lightfoot were among a panel of experts at the Richmond Library on Sunday discussing the East Bay's Native American legacy and how to preserve it.

The event was organized by the Richmond Museum of History and moderated by George Coles, a San Francisco State University archaeology professor who has taught at Contra Costa College and has led digs at numerous East Bay shellmound sites, including Brooks Island off the Richmond shore.

ELECTION 2002

Albany will decide trio of tax measures

By Alan Lopez
STAFF WRITER

ALBANY — Residents are set to vote Nov. 5 on three city ballot measures that would pay for infrastructure improvements and other city services.

City Council members say the tax increases are intended to make up for the city's weak sales tax base and revenue siphoned off by the state.

But at least one resident will rise against them: Tony Caine, who wrote the opposing arguments in the voters pamphlet.

Caine wants the City Council to find an alternative to raising taxes to meet budget needs. Raising property taxes, he said, will drop property values as residents will find less tax-burdened cities in which to live.

"Our council seems to have it in their heads that they would rather tax us than generate alternative sources of income," said Caine, a former candidate for city treasurer. "And a way to change the question is to turn down all these taxes."

The measures need a two-thirds majority to pass.

Infrastructure

Under Measure F, $14.5 million would go toward infrastructure improvements, including: streetscape improvements for San Pablo and Solano avenues, traffic-calming projects, street paving, building repair, City Hall and firestation seismic retrofitting, park upgrades and a Pierce Street parkland purchase.

Emergency medical tax

Measure G is an emergency medical tax increase intended to appease city firefighters, who lobbied this summer for salary and pension increases that would place them in the average of cities along the Interstate 80 corridor. Department personnel complained that their relatively low salaries are driving firefighters to better-paying cities.

Council members said the increase will maintain the quality of the city's emergency response.

Property transfer tax

Measure H would increase the property transfer tax for homes and businesses and would raise an extra $200,000 a year to help pay for city services.

The transfer tax for a $400,000 home would cost an extra $1,200. Shouldering the cost of the tax could be negotiated between the buyer and seller.

City Councilman Allan Maris said the city has lost about $500,000 a year as a result of the state taking much of its property tax away. The increase in the property transfer tax would make up for some of that shortfall, he said.

"If revenue didn't increase, it would be a matter of what you cut back," said Councilman Jon Ely. "We'd start looking at services to what we provide the public that you could do without."

Caine maintains the city could raise money by promoting development along the waterfront or I-80. He would also like to see a cardroom at Golden Gate

See MEASURES, Page A11

ALBANY TAX MEASURES

Measure F: Would increase property taxes to $81.55 per $100,000 of assessed property value, to pay back $14.5 million worth of city-issued bonds.

Measure G: Would increase the city's emergency medical services tax from $30.84 to $57.53 to give firefighters a salary and pension increase.

Measure H: Would increase the property transfer tax for homes and businesses to $11.50 per $1,000 of the sale price.

EL CERRITO City Council candidates Kathie Perka, left, Sandi Potter, and Janet Abelson answered questions at a forum Tuesday at the Northminster Church. Perka and Abelson are incumbents.

Candidates focus on repairs, development

■ Democratic Club decides to endorse challenger Sandi Potter

By Alan Lopez

EL CERRITO — Candidates for City Council gave different views on infrastructure repair and what the best kinds of developments for the city are at a recent candidate forum sponsored by the El Cerrito Democratic Club.

Newcomer Sandi Potter answered questions alongside the incumbents, Mayor Janet Abelson and Mayor Pro Tem Kathleen Perka. The three are running for two open seats.

Questions at the forum came from the audience and covered a wide range of topics. The questions were selected at random, read by a moderator, then each candidate was given between a minute and a half to two minutes to answer.

Candidates differed on the subject of street repair, with Perka saying she wants more money from the city's general fund devoted to it.

"It will cost us less money in the long run if we pay for it now," she said.

Perka had wanted a portion of the city's Measure A parcel tax money to pay for it as well. The council instead, by a 3-2 vote, authorized spending the "Section 10" money on the pool facility repair, at its Sept. 23 meeting.

Potter and Abelson said they want to see the city look at infrastructure improvements as a whole and plan for what could be repaired. Abelson added that money from the Measure C state bond measure would be available for street repair in the future.

The candidates also differed on what kind of development to bring to the city. Perka said she

Tilden Park

Wildcat Canyon Road closed on weekdays

Visitors to Tilden Park, or motorists trying to pass through, will find Wildcat Canyon Road closed on weekdays at Inspiration Point.

The road, which links Tilden and the Berkeley hills with San Pablo Dam Road, is the focus of a $543,000 project to shore up some 400 feet of the roadway and adjacent embankment considered unstable.

Work, which started in late August and has left the road closed to all but emergency vehicles since Sept. 2, is being done now to ensure the road is safe before the arrival of winter rains that could undermine its condition further. The project consists of installing 132 "soldier piles," each 24 inches in diameter, to buttress the slide and stabilize the road, and installing "geogrid" in the embankment area below the road to stabilize the slope. Work also includes reconstructing the adjacent roadway and installing drainage facilities.

Work is expected to take until mid-October, according to the Contra Costa County Department of Public Works.

OK, all you frequent fliers can rest easy: You don't have to worry about Miranda Sanborn of Berkeley hijacking the plane. Miranda was traveling with her family from Chicago to Oakland last week when she was pulled aside for random screening and given the full security checkout. They made her spread her arms while they went up and down with the wand. They examined her shoes to make sure she wasn't packing a bomb in the soles. They even went through her transparent Clifford the Big Red Dog backpack, where they found several suspicious-looking finger puppets. Miranda is 5 years old.

Girls in the Boy Scouts? Where else but in Berkeley, where the local Scout troop is already in hot water with the national organization for being insufficiently homophobic. Over the summer, Berkeley Boy Scout Crew No. 24 sent an all-female contingent to Boy Scout Camp Wolfeboro, located in the Sierras. What's more, the girls walked away with the coveted Gold Cross Award, denoting several all-boy crews. On the individual level, Crew 24's Senior Patrol Leader, Rachel Miller, won the Iceman Award. (Maybe they should rename it "Icewoman.") And Crew 24 President Brianna Georgi was one of the first girls to serve at Camp Wolfeboro as a merit-badge counselor, teaching the boys the skills they needed for Nature and Ecology merit badges. Way to go, girls!

Last week, I said my three favorite things to do in the Bay Area are riding the cable cars, touring Alcatraz, and visiting the aircraft carrier USS. Hornet. But I should have added a fourth: attending a broadcast of "West Coast Live."

If you haven't heard this radio show yet, you're missing a real treat. It's a lively mix of good talk and good music, broadcast every Saturday morning from 10 to noon on KALW, 91.7-FM. I listen to it religiously every week, but it's even more fun to attend a broadcast.

Usually, that means getting there early on Saturday morning and schlepping across the bridge to San Francisco. But for the next two weeks, host Mike Thomson will bring the show over to this side of the bay, to the Freight & Salvage in Berkeley.

Among tomorrow's guests: Salman Rushdie and novelist Alan Furst. Next week, the guests will include Jim Lehrer, novelist Alice Sebold and blues guitarist Joe Bonamossa. Thomson is just back from Great Britain, where he took the show last month, broadcasting from London and Edinburgh. And surprise! He says the food was great.

"The Alice Waters sensibility has even spread to England," he says. "There's a keen interest in organic food and fresh vegetables. In Scotland, I even found places that serve vegetarian haggis, which seems to defeat the purpose."

Thomson lives in Berkeley — by coincidence, in the same 'hood as pianist Sarah Cahill, who hosts my other favorite radio show, "Then And Now," which is also on KALW. Those of you who fondly remember her Friday morning classical music program on KPFA will be glad to know that she's now doing the same thing every Sunday night from 8 to 10 on KALW. "Then And Now" is a fascinating exploration of the continuity between traditional classical music and the "new music" being written today. And the links are stronger than you'd suspect.

Sometimes it seems as if Cahill is friends with everyone who's doing interesting stuff in modern music, and they all show up on her program sooner or later. She and her guests talk, play music, and give you a rare insight into the way musicians think about their craft.

Much of the show's charm is Cahill herself. A renowned classical pianist, she has a refreshing lack of self-importance. I don't know what the opposite of "prima donna" is, but she's it. There's a generosity of spirit that permeates everything she does. No wonder all those musicians are so eager to be on her show; it's a safe place where they can play and talk about the music they love.

Cahill also hosts a monthly Saturday music series at the Jazzschool on Addison Street in Berkeley, sponsored by the Berkeley Arts Festival. Like her radio show, it's a combination of good talk and live performance, with audience discussion thrown in. She loves to break down the wall between the performer and the audience.

The next event will be Saturday, Oct. 19, when her guest will be flutist Maggi Payne, director of the Center For Contemporary Music at Mills College. You couldn't ask for a better way to spend a Saturday night.

Meanwhile, I hope to see you at noon tomorrow at Alan's PETzeria on Gilman Street for the first annual Great Dog Lick-Off. The rules are simple: Pay the $5 entry fee, put some peanut butter on your face, and let your dog lick it off. The dog that licks the longest wins. The winner will get a $100 gift certificate from the PETzeria, and all entry fees will go directly to the Berkeley Humane Society, along with 5 percent of the PETzeria's total sales for the day. And, of course, plenty of lovable dogs and cats from the Society's shelter will also be there, looking for new homes.

Finally, a few words of praise for Berkeley City Councilman Kriss Worthington. Not because of his stand on the issues; it's out of sheer gratitude. In my job, I get fundraising letters from candidates far and wide. Most are so cluttered with pious rhetorical BOMFOG (short for "Brotherhood-of-Man-Fatherhood-of-God"), you practically have to hack through the verbiage with a machete. Not so with Worthington's letter. Let me quote it in full: "Dear friends, Please send money. Thank you very much, Kriss Worthington." Such conciseness should be commended, don't you think?

Sing Thing preserves 'endangered music'

FAMILY SINGING

For more information on Fireside Family Singing, contact Sandi Morey at singthing@cwnet.com, or call her at 510-482-1833.

SHE CALLS IT Fireside Family Singing, and from the reports I have heard, it is a wonderful thing. Originally she had meant it for children only, but more and more the parents who brought the children would stay and participate. And so it grew.

In Albany, the group is hosted by Tony Littleton "because his house has a fireplace," says Sandi Morey, who runs her Sing Thing from October through May.

The groups sing "endangered species music," songs that used to be familiar to everyone but now are little-heard: work songs and sea chanteys; songs with an historical background, or from other cultures, Polynesian songs, Native American songs, and the like. It's a variety of songs that delight the young and the older who take part.

"It's an accumulative experience," Morey says. "They come in perhaps not having had experience in singing, perhaps not having experienced songs that come from their own historical background, maybe they don't read music (they don't have to) maybe they can't even read yet, if they are 5 years old. By the end of the year everyone will have a body of songs, will have learned a lot about harmonies and music and will have met a lot of interesting people they may not have known before. The children are often from different schools, even home-schooled."

She adds, "I try to make it fun and interesting by offering challenging songs and also time for requests."

Then she says, "I look at it as my peace work and my environmental work, because I think when people sing in harmony they have the facility to live in harmony."

Morey has three groups at the present time, one in San Francisco, one in Oakland and the one in Albany. Each group is different, she tells us, and the numbers vary from about 25 to about 40 people.

She accompanies with her guitar, but, she says, "The guitar is not the focus. Mostly it just keeps the rhythm."

She calls it Fireside Family Singing, but her T-shirt says "Sing Thing" and so does her e-mail address.

And why did she start these programs? "Because I didn't have anyone to sing rounds with."

She adds, "I learned a lot of wonderful rounds at a Y camp called Timbertall, in Oakland, from the '40s to the early '60s. We sang great songs, and I wasn't able to sing them with anyone."

She was looking around for something to do with her life, wanting to change things, and wanting to sing. She sang at the Renaissance Faire and the Dickens Faire, as well as other places, but wanted to do something else. A friend, Robin Goodfellow, who was a music teacher, had students who were "note-bound."

Morey started a class in Goodfellow's studio for the note-bound, they often brought their children, and that is how Sing Thing started, with six children. she says.

Morey has an elementary teaching credential, plus a special life credential in American folklore.

"I sang traditional music since the age of 3. My folks were into traditional music. In fact, I sat on Pete Seeger's lap and sang with him when I was 3."

Her mom was a professional hula dancer in the '30s. "I was a red-diaper baby and was raised on folk music."

Born in Alameda, she lived in a lot of different places, went to high school on the peninsula and to college at San Francisco State.

Morey spent some time in the South, particularly in Austin, Texas. She started collecting traditional music while in the British Isles. But mostly she has been a performer, starting as a balladeer and folk singer. She has also done folk dancing and has done "stage, education and ethnic performances." She also teaches the guitar and is a specialist in the traditional music of Christmas.

Morey sadly notes that she has seen her groups change from mostly public-school families to more and more private and home-schooled; from mixed race groups to almost totally white and from all economic groups to mostly upper middle class.

She would like to go back to the original mixed groups, but since there is a fee involved,

EDITORIAL

This time it's for real

Special offer! Extras are available only for a limited time! Don't wait until the last minute! That may sound like a typical radio or television advertisement, filled with hollow promises to make customers try a product. But it is not.

Instead, the words mean exactly what they say, and those words are coming from the Contra Costa County Department of Elections and the Alameda County Registrar of Voters. A crucial deadline is fast approaching, and prospective voters are encouraged to act quickly.

Every election year, the same old pitch is made for non-registered voters to register before the deadline, which is 15 days before Election Day. Since voting will take place Tuesday, Nov. 5, that makes Monday, Oct. 21, the last day to register.

Residents who miss that date will be unable to cast a ballot for any of the major offices in the state, unable to help decide any of the measures and unable to vote for who will run the county and the cities within it.

But there is another deadline date that no one hears much about, a date that is almost more important than the final day to register. The date is Monday, Oct. 7, and it even has a name around the Elections Office — "E minus 29."

By registering to vote by Oct. 21, voters receive acknowledgment of their registration, their polling place location and little more. They may only see sample ballots when they show up to vote.

However, residents who register by or before Oct. 7 — 29 days or more before Election Day — will receive the materials that can help them make an informed decision: ballot pamphlets and a voter information guide, complete with arguments pro and con. That deadline is Oct. 7, but now is the time to take care of registration.

And it is not as if this is a difficult process. Voter registration cards are available at the post office, the Department of Motor Vehicles, the library, the city clerk's offices in all city halls and, of course, the Contra Costa County Elections Office at 524 Main St. in downtown Martinez or the Alameda County Courthouse at 1225 Fallon St., Room G-1, Oakland. Fill in the card and send it in — it's that simple.

For people who live on the Internet and who can't pull themselves away from the computer, it is even easier — register online. Just go to www.ss.ca.gov/elections/votereg1.html and everything is explained. The state does not have complete online registration, so after all the information is filled in and sent, a confirmation card is sent out that must be signed and returned.

Other Web sites that can help out with registration and election information are the League of Women Voters' site at www.smartvoter.org and the county Elections Department site at www.co.contra-costa.ca.us:80/depart/elect/index.htm or the Alameda County Registrar of Voters site at http://www.co.alameda.ca.us/rov/registration.htm

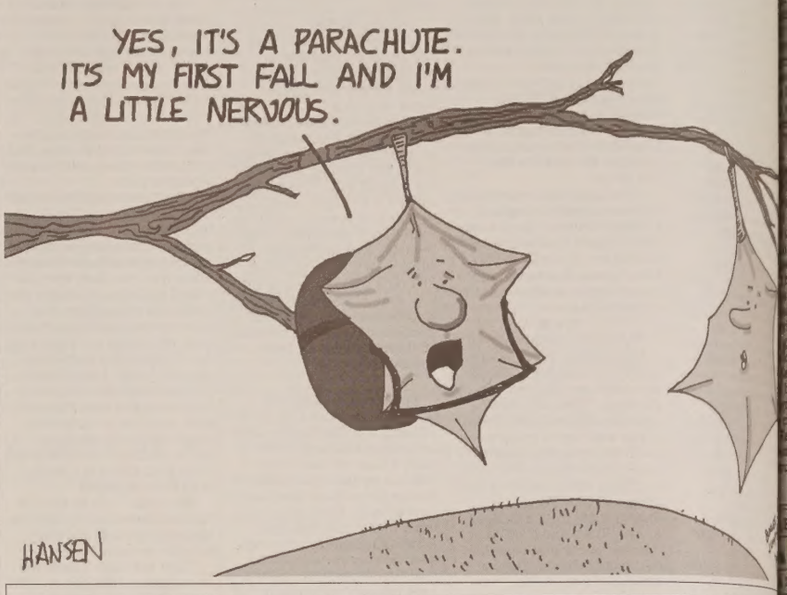

Waiting to register until the last possible day is like taking a multiple-choice test without reading the book or studying — purely a game of hit and miss. Is that any way to choose public officials and the laws of the city, county and state?

BART doesn't care

There are no more timed transfer points to San Francisco. After waiting for years for what would appear to be a no-brainer — timed transfers to San Francisco on the Richmond-Fremont line — they have been removed.

BART is telling riders: Don't even bother transferring (except for night travel), since it won't help you at all. Ron Rodriguez, a BART spokesman, said that BART's rule of thumb has always been, jump on the first train and transfer at MacArthur station. He also said that now BART's advising people going to San Francisco to wait for a direct train.

What this essentially means is West Contra Costa residents just had their BART schedules to San Francisco cut in half. What used to be a 6- to 7-minute wait at commute time for service that would take you to San Francisco is now a full 15 minutes to wait for a direct train.

How did this happen? Are we supposed to be overjoyed that soon we can go to the San Francisco Airport and/or have longer trains for half the service? Ask most riders who regularly commute to San Francisco and the great majority would prefer increased service.

For those of us with children and tight schedules, where every minute counts, especially when you are paying for after-school or baby-sitting, those extra 15 minutes are a nightmare.

What is it about BART and West County? We have never been given the extensions we were promised years ago and now, more than any other line, our service has been severely disrupted.

Is anyone listening out there? We need more service, not less, if public transportation is to encourage us to leave our cars behind and increase ridership!

Please rethink these schedules immediately. Is it really that difficult to continue to have timed transfer points?

Call BART at 510-464-7134 to express your displeasure with their manipulation of this portion of our lives.

AARP's cheaper

At one time, my HMO charged a $5 co-payment for 30 Furosemide. The AARP Pharmacy charged $6 for 100 at that time.

My HMO now charges a $10 co-payment for 30. AARP now charges $7.50 for 100.

I figured that I could save more than $150 per year by buying all my medicines from the AARP Pharmacy.

Merely a rumor

That the World Trade Center terrorist Mohamed Atta had been imprisoned for a prior terrorist act in Israel is based on a rumor.

A Palestinian from Ramallah with a similar name, Mahmoud Abed Atta, was extradited to Israel from the United States in 1990, charged with being involved in a machine-gun and firebomb attack on a West Bank bus in 1986. He was sentenced to life imprisonment but was later freed by the Israeli Supreme Court.

Mohamed Atta, who attacked the World Trade Center, was an Egyptian and had never been in Palestine.

False words

For George W. Bush to speak of peace and security and promotion of democracy is disgustingly false.

While the Bush Administration has steadily continued to offend the rest of the world, I have felt less and less peaceful and secure. And the Bush Administration's main principle about democracy is this: Talk about democracy for false advertising and wherever democracy is in place, but not giving you what you want, subvert it.

The record starts early and continues consistently to this day.

The Presidential elections: Prevent people who would vote against you from voting (blacks in Florida) and also discard ballots of people who wanted to vote against you.

Yasser Arafat: Demand he hold elections, but delay them, because the people might still elect him again; so we can't respect democracy among the Palestinians.

Terrorism: Deny freedom of speech and access to lawyers to hundreds of people who have been detained, especially if they have incriminating evidence against the Bush administration. Create a shadow government that Congress won't know about. Get more and more executive power for yourself.

Saddam Hussein: Even though Iraq had a democratic system in place, don't call for elections to replace Saddam Hussein, but subjugate the people with sanctions and bomb them, instead.

United Nations: We don't have to respect democracy outside the United States. Screw the rest of the world.

Why this behavior? The only consistent explanation is oil power!

I long for a regime change in the White House.

Palestinian distress

The U.N. special coordinator: "The Palestinians are scrambling to survive in severe poverty."

They have been victimized by their own cousins for decades.

Celebration aims to alter lives, entertain

BETTY KING BUGINAS
Schools

THE ANNUAL WEST COUNTY Back to School Celebration is a great way to spend a day – full of free, kid-oriented, pro-learning activities. But organizer George Harris III hopes it will be more.

"A one-day event is great, but it's better is if that one-day event can turn into a life-altering experience," says Harris.

Harris, a member of the West Contra Costa Unified School District board, took over leadership of the event three years ago. With his kids still deeply involved, the West Contra Costa Public Education Fund became the sponsor of this year's event, which takes place Oct. 5.

The event runs 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Nicholl Park, on Macdonald Avenue between 29th and 33rd streets in Richmond.

Harris has always tried to attract a wide variety of exhibitors, and urged them to come up with an activity to convey their message to children.

This year, aided by volunteers from the district's School-Based Services Department, Harris made a special effort to find groups that might spark young interests.

Sailmasters, for example, will bring a boat in hopes of inspiring interest in a kids' sailing club.

The East Bay Center for the Performing Arts will have musical instruments on hand for informal lessons, as well as offering performances and face painting.

Physical activities will include a rock-climbing wall, a stationary bicycle, bike rodeo, and golf, tennis, baseball and soccer activities.

United Teachers of Richmond will offer math games; Project SEED will have math activities as well. West County Reads will have a Harry Potter-themed booth with special guests reading throughout the day.

Visitors can make books at the SBC Global booth, tool boxes with members of the sheetmetal workers union, and crafts at the East Bay Depot for Creative Reuse booth. Camp Fire Boys and Girls will offer leather stamping. Artist Harold Beaulieu will help kids make prints with fish, while letting adults know about his plan to make the world's largest mural using shipping containers.

Junior Achievement will be there, as well as Making Waves, a group that provides support to help students succeed in school.

Health and safety booths will offer finger-printing, health screening, an AIDS quiz and firefighter-led stop, drop and roll. Several school district departments will be represented, and college information will be available.

E-Bus will offer computer activities, KMEL will broadcast from the event from 10 to 11 a.m., and Ronald McDonald and other mascots will be there.

Food vendors will be added this year. Keeping with the intent to have all activities free to kids, children will get a ticket for a complimentary lunch from any food booth, while adults can purchase food.

Another intent of the event is to draw together families from throughout the school district. Last year, 56 of 61 schools were represented. To get the word out this year, folders are being distributed to all elementary school children in the district.

The folder includes this year's slogan, "Learning takes you places," and related artwork the children can color. While the folders go only to elementary school children, a special effort has been made this year to offer activities suitable for older students, too.

Students from the WCCUSD can sign up for free school supplies, which will be distributed through their schools by Oct. 11.

Betty King Buginas is a teacher in the West Contra Costa Unified School District.

Time to check out 'Grapes of Wrath'

This week's quote:

"… the writer is delegated to declare and to celebrate man's proven capacity for greatness of heart and spirit — for gallantry in defeat, for courage, compassion and love."

— John Steinbeck

JULIE WINKELSTEIN
At the Library

I'M SITTING at my desk, looking at a photograph of John Steinbeck. In case you haven't seen the publicity yet, this is the 100th anniversary of his birth, and to celebrate, the California Council for the Humanities in partnership with the California Center for the Book and the California State Library, have launched a new program called "California Stories: Reading 'The Grapes of Wrath.'"

All over California, libraries are participating in various ways, from films to book discussion groups to art displays and writing workshops.

Why is this happening? Following the lead of city programs, like the popular If All of Seattle Read the Same Book, run by the Washington Center for the Book at the Seattle Public Library, the idea is to get people all over the state reading and discussing a chosen book, in this case, "The Grapes of Wrath."

I think I read "The Grapes of Wrath" in high school, but I have to admit I'm not sure. And since books read in high school can be a long time ago for some of us, it's a good idea to go back and read them again.

It looks like that may be happening in Albany — of the 25 copies we started with, there are only three on the shelf. Or maybe readers are getting ready for the programs we will be having in October.

Our first one is on Wednesday, October 2 at 7:30 p.m.: Voice in the Well Ensemble will dramatize favorite selections from Steinbeck books, with a particular emphasis on "The Grapes of Wrath."

Information on other Albany library Steinbeck programs is available at the library or on our Web site, www.aclibrary.org.

The El Cerrito and Kensington libraries are also sponsoring special Grapes of Wrath programs during October. Besides ongoing art displays, their first programs start on Oct. 14 with a moderated book discussion at Kensington and a Teen Poetry Writing Workshop at El Cerrito.

More information about these is available at their libraries and on their Web site, www.ccclib.org

You might be wondering: what if I don't read it? Should I still come to these events or is it like a school assignment and I won't be allowed to participate if I didn't do the work? The answer is, of course you should come. Come watch the films or listen to the readings or enjoy some farm worker stories or view some slides.

Bring a friend or a child or a parent or a spouse — this is a wonderful opportunity for inter-generational discussions (one of my favorite topics — there will be more about this in another column).

At this point, I'm going to admit I haven't been as enthusiastic about this from the beginning as I could have been. Mass anything, whether it is book reading or the latest fad in food (like tiramisu being on every dessert menu), is difficult for me. So I asked our branch manager, Ronnie Davis, what appeals to her about this concept and about this book in particular. Since she had many answers, I will combine her response with this week's book review.

First, Ronnie loves the idea of everyone reading and talking about the same book. And, probably to appease my need for independence, she pointed out even though everyone is reading the same book, no one is dictating to us how we should feel or what we get out of it. I have to agree, that's a good point.

As for the book itself, as she reread it, she said realized she now identifies more with the mother in the book who struggles to keep her family together and to keep them fed. And she was struck by the power of the book in its portrayal of the oppression of the worker. Of course, there is always the appeal of reading a book that was banned, too.

If you have suggestions for future columns or questions, you can reach me at the Albany Library or at jwinkelstein@aclibrary.org. Want to review a book? Pick up a mini book review slip at the reference desk.

Grand Avenue

Grand and Lakeshore in Oakland — a pair of streets made for strolling

BY WENDY PAULSON
CORRESPONDENT

Driving along Grand and Lakeshore Avenues amid the distracting hustle and bustle of city traffic is the best way to totally miss what this pair of very different streets offers in terms of food, stores and services. To really see it — park and walk around.

On foot, one can stop and smell the wood-burning stoves firing up at Mezzé restaurant on Lakeshore Avenue, or see the Asian antiques in the storefront window at Benjamin Moore Decorator Paints on Grand Ave.

It's also easier to spot the numerous examples of 1920s-art deco and 1930s-streamline modern architecture that grace buildings on both avenues. Find them by looking either straight up or across the street at roof lines adorned with things like clusters of cherubs or stark geometric lines.

A tale of two avenues

Although Grand Avenue's girth hardly resembles Lakeshore Avenue's narrower, tree-lined "Main Street" look, their close proximity to the Grand Lake Theater — the landmark entrance to this business district — can be confusing.

But the theater name is a good way to remember the order of these retail relatives. The theater marquee marks the entrance to Grand Avenue, and the next street over is Lakeshore.

Connector streets are Lake Park Avenue, which parallels I-580 and provides freeway access from the western front of the district, and Mandana Boulevard, which marks the eastern rear section and borders the Trestle Glen neighborhood.

Smaller streets — Cheney, Glenview, Rand, Walker, Warfield and Wickson — criss-cross the quadrant and are lined with apartment buildings and homes built mostly between 1920 and 1950.

Free parking

Both avenues have two-hour curbside parking meters and free public parking lots. Behind Lakeshore Avenue is a bi-level Albertson's lot on Wesley Way with free, two-hour parking. Wesley Way parallels Lakeshore Avenue for a block between Lake Park Avenue and Trestle Glen Road. Longridge Road and Mandana Boulevard provide more free district parking.

Off Grand Avenue, a public lot on Walker Avenue is a block east of the theater. Nearby residential streets have limited curbside parking, with some permit restrictions. Lake Park Avenue has five-hour meters on the curbs across from the theater. An adjacent commuter lot beneath I-580 has 5- and 10-hour meters that are free on weekends. Most curbside meters are free after

Retail business thrives around the Grand

A prominent landmark, the Grand Lake Theatre, with its towering presence by day and its nighttime beacon of neon, dominates the landscape of west Grand Avenue. But movies aren't the only thing to see on Grand Avenue.

For starters there is prime people-watching from the outdoor seats at The Coffee Mill & Bakery, which touts itself as "Oakland's oldest coffee house." Or, try night life at The Alley piano bar, featuring house pianist Rod Dibble, who has tickled these ivories for more than 40 years. The Alley, opened in 1933, is one of Oakland's oldest piano bars.

During World War II, ABC radio broadcast live music from The Alley overseas to the troops. To this day, anyone is welcome to take a turn at the microphone to croon hit tunes from the '20s, '30s, '40s and '50s —in the real-McCoy singing style of hep cats, not Karaoke.

Grand Avenue also has many service businesses interspersed with its restaurants and specialty shops. Among them is General Computer Services, owned and operated by E.G. Yang for 11 years.

Yang, who recently purchased the Wells Fargo building adjacent to his store, works six 12-hour days to keep up with the busy demand at his computer supply and repair shop. The city-style bustling of foot and vehicle traffic along Grand Avenue has been much the same over the years, he said, noting that "business has always been good."

"Service-type businesses do well here, but we still have good places to eat," said Bob Burns, owner/operator of Grand Lake Sew and Vac, who marks 30 years as a Grand Avenue mainstay in January.

Formerly in the trucking business, Burns said he changed careers following a divorce that left him as the sole caretaker of his three children. "I needed to be home in time to make dinner every day," he said, chuckling.

And when it comes to dinner, or any meal, Grand Avenue is a good place to find a big variety of eateries. Restaurants include Milano's, Autumn Moon and Grand Oaks.

But Grand Avenue's more unique flavor is found in its specialty shops. Walden Pond Bookstore's new and used volumes focus on literary classics and a wide selection of foreign-language publications.

Step into Cultural Crossroads for a sample of home decor that includes imported works and those by local artists. Find unusual coins and pins at Stamps For Collectors. At Sol Companion pet care, state-of-the-art canine physical therapy includes a hydrotherapy tanks for dogs that is one of only a handful in the entire nation.

Grand Lake District

akeshore district is a delightful mix of longtime family businesses and chains

BY WENDY PAULSON

an area that spans a few blocks, the Lakeshore Avenue ess District can keep visitors hied for many hours. Early ng coffee, mid-morning bank- noon lunches, early afternoon e-gift shopping, after-school no, after-work socializing, din- nerings of live jazz, R&B danc- midnight espresso drinks and middle-of-the-night donuts all ailable here. Clientele spills m the district's restaurants ekend nights and, except for e hours, it's hard to find a day when there isn't side- affic.

is is really a family-oriented munity," said Nancy Strange, ner of the Lakeshore Business ciation. "There is a lot of pos- nergy."

keshore Avenue differs from ooring Grand Avenue in ap- pearance and traffic flow. It's tree-lined streets and canvas awnings preserve the "Main Street" essence of pre-1960s small-town America. But the nearly constant flow of vehicles in and out of curbside parking is a sure sign of today's metropolitan-area lifestyle. This side-by-side existence of mom-and-pop charm plus modern retail shops and restaurants juxtaposes the practical with the unusual, the familiar with the chic.

Only a few steps away from large chains such as The Gap, Longs Drugs and Subway are imported home furnishings at Africa by the Bay, elegant boutiques such as Turning Heads dress shop and Silver Lining jewelry, plus fine restaurants like Mezze. For example, a rooftop sign reading "Wheatley Stationers, Engravers, Gifts, Cards," is shaped like a TV screen in early-1960s commercial style. Just a few doors down is Papyrus. This Papyrus is the third original shop and was opened 13 years ago by the Berkeley-based chain.

Family-owned businesses

In this neighborhood, mom-and-pop type service businesses such as Walter Bennett Photography, opened in 1950 by owner Jim Bennett's father, and Sherman Cleaners, founded in 1933 by Rose Sherman, become pillars of local history, rather than piles of renovation rubble. They also preserve traditions of a multiple-generation, family-owned business, as well as the old-fashioned, general store mentality that offers a social setting for conversation.

At 73, Ann Grcevich knows the value of working, talking and listening. Sherman Cleaners has been like a second home since she and her now-deceased husband bought it in 1968. Her son Michael Grcevich and his wife of 25 years, Linda, now run the business.

"It's my reason for getting up in the morning," said Grcevich, noting that when her granddaughter comes to work, there are three generations of family on board. Grcevich's caring nature is evidenced by warm words, a loving smile and 34 dedicated years of handpacking wedding gowns for storage. She also makes it a point to circulate her motherly instinct along the avenue.

"Mom is a beacon of light because she knows it all," son Michael said. "She is the soundwall of Lakeshore Avenue. If anyone has a problem, they go to her."

Unselfish generosity that blends mercantile and maternal instincts also describes Cricket Deetz, owner of the popular Italian eatery Spettro. A mother of five, Deetz takes in foster children, caters parties, weddings and film crews that number in the thousands, and still finds time to serve as president of the Lakeshore Business Association.

"Cricket has a heart as big as the ocean," said association manager Strange. "She believes in family and community. Her mind is on the planet, on the people, on everything. If there's a death in the family, if a child needs a home, if anyone needs anything, she jumps in without a word and does everything."

A sense of family permeates Lakeshore Avenue's ambience even after dark, with laughing social groups walking up the street in search of food and nightlife. The Lakeshore Jahva House has long been a gathering spot for nighttime poetry readings and live music. The Fifth Amendment is a reputable jazz/R&B club.

Fun for kids

When it comes to playtime, children are the focus at family-owned Adventure Toys & Learning Center, while kids and adults alike are intrigued by the fantasy-game tournaments held at End Game.

CANDY COLLIER/SPECIAL SECTIONS

SPETTRO ATTRACTS many regulars who enjoy the food as well as the colorful decor and ambience of this Oakland eatery.

For the little ones, the Halloween Tiny Tot & Toddler Parade scheduled from 9:30 - 11 a.m., Saturday, Oct. 26., will begin at the corner of Lakeshore Avenue and Mandana Boulevard, and ends at the Grand Lake Neighborhood Center, 530 Lake Park Ave. It is sponsored by Lakeshore Business Association. Participants in the police-escorted costume parade receive a free goody bag, a miniature pumpkin, and can trick-or-treat at stores displaying a black cat in the window.

At the nearby Grand Lake Farmer's Market from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. the same day, families can vote for their favorite storefront scarecrow, participate in pie-eating and scarecrow-building contests. Even without organized activities, one thing is clear about the Lakeshore Avenue experience. It's like stepping a family gathering that reserves a place at the table for every member in every generation.

Operating from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays under director Pam Drake, the center serves as a bridge between Lakeshore and Grand avenues, and hosts the workspace for Lakeshore Business Association manager Nancy Strange.

Art and attractions

In addition, murals on the center's interior walls are the work of local artist Peter Lee, whose colorful images grace windows and indoor/outdoor walls on both Grand and Lakeshore avenues.

This visual continuity between the two streets can be seen on Grand Avenue outside Colonel Mustard's eatery, The Coffee Mill & Bakery and the Nail Shoppe. On Lakeshore Avenue, see Lee's work at the Lakeshore Café, Rolling Dunes, a new restaurant featuring crepes, and in the window at Serenity Hair Salon.

Lee is holding a watercolor class on Sunday, Sept. 29 at the Center, for a cost of $10 per participant. From 4 – 6 p.m. Mon., Sept. 30, at the Center, he will teach a free art class for kids. Call 510-834-1263 for details on either class.

Lake Park Avenue also hosts the area's largest recurring event — the Grand Lake Farmer's Market. As many as 40 vendors hawk produce from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. every Saturday in the parking lot beneath I-580. Admission is free.

No mention of the Grand Avenue/Lakeshore Avenue region would be complete without a salute to the centerpiece Grand Lake Theater, built in 1926 as a vaudeville house, with the neon fireworks sign and Wurlitzer pipe organ in working order. Organ mini-concerts precede Friday- and Saturday-night film features. Movie screens and sound systems are state-of-the-art in four screening rooms for first-run films. Two rooms sport Arabic and Egyptian interiors that evoke the 1930's Golden Era of films. Renaissance Rialto, Inc. bought the theater and spent $3.5 million on restoration.

EL CERRITO CHAMBER NEWS

Needlework shop having party to celebrate 6 years

By Sewall Glinternick

Chamber member Skein Lane, a local headquarters for needlework enthusiasts, will mark its sixth anniversary with a birthday party.

Carolyn Pugh, proprietor of the store at 7512 Fairmount Ave., invites customers to join her from 4 to 7 p.m. Oct. 5 for an afternoon of food, music and fun, she says. The party will feature Skein Lane's first customer fashion show, which will remain on exhibit until Oct. 19.

Inspired every day by her customers' "creativity and stitching zeal," Pugh says she asked them to share their creations with the community. All media used in the shop — knitting, crochet, needlepoint, cross-stitch, embroidery, crewel and weaving — will be represented in the show.

Skein Lane, meanwhile, will offer fall classes in sock-making, felting and tatting in addition to its regular knitting and crocheting classes.

For class schedules and more information, call 510-525-1828.

MEMBER RENEWS: Superior Plumbing & Heating has extended its membership for another year.

CANDIDATES' NIGHT: The chamber, in cooperation with the city and the League of Women Voters, will co-host a "Meet Your Council Candidates Night" from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 15, in the City Council chamber at the Community Center.

Janet Abelson, Kathie Perka and Sandi Potter, the three candidates running for two seats on the council, all are expected to attend. Each will be given equal time to summarize their positions, and will take questions from the audience.

The moderator will be Louise Vogelsberg of the League of Women Voters. Refreshments will be served.

PASTA DINNER BENEFIT : The El Cerrito Lions Club, an associate chamber member, will hold a pasta dinner benefit from 4 to 6 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 6, at the El Cerrito Masonic Center at 6922 Stockton Ave.

Tickets for the event, which is open to the public, are $5 for adults and $3 for children younger than 12 and are available from any member of the local Lions Club, at the chamber office and at the door.

HIRAM DESIGN MOVES: Rodney Hiram of the Hiram Design Group recently moved his base of operations from 7516 Fairmount Ave. to his home. He can be contacted by phone at 510-528-8901 or by fax at 510-528-8913.

NEW PETCO MANAGER: Tyrone Nesbit has replaced Bryan Hidenfelter as the manager of Petco at 420 El Cerrito Plaza, one of the chamber's newest members. Nesbit, a resident of Richmond, joined the pet supply firm in January and was a salesman at the Santa Rosa store and assistant manager at the company's store in San Francisco.

The El Cerrito Chamber of Commerce office is located at 10848 San Pablo Ave. The phone number is 510-233-7040.

Cal professor wins Lasker Award

■ Randy Schekman of El Cerrito was honored for using yeast models to map out the secretion system in all cells

By Guy Ashley
STAFF WRITER

A UC Berkeley scientist who used yeast to understand and map mechanisms basic to cell function has been honored with the nation's highest award for basic medical research.

Randy Schekman, 53, a professor of molecular and cell biology, will share the Lasker Award for Basic Medical Research with James Rothman of the Sloan-Kettering Institute in New York City.

The two scientists will receive their awards at a luncheon today in New York City.

The Lasker Awards for basic and clinical research are touted as the U.S. equivalent of the Nobel Prizes. In fact, 65 Lasker recipients have gone on to win Nobels.

"I knew I had been nominated, but I never expected to win," said Schekman, who has taught at UC Berkeley for 26 years. "You look at the list of past winners ... it's amazing."

Schekman and Rothman are being honored for separately mapping out the secretion system in all cells that shuttles out hormones and enzymes and adds to the cell surface so it can grow and divide.

The system, which uses little membrane bubbles to ferry molecules around the cell interior, is so critical that errors in the machinery inevitably lead to death.

Schekman

Various diseases, including some forms of diabetes and a type of hemophilia, involve hitches in the secretion system of cells.

Insights gained through Schekman's work have fueled many initiatives in the biotechnology industry and helped in the development of pharmaceutical products, including insulin used by diabetics and hepatitis B vaccine.

Schekman is now investigating whether interruptions in the system are linked to Alzheimer's disease.

Schekman credits his biology teacher at Western High School in Anaheim with nurturing his early interest in science. His high school science projects won him medals, trophies and even money at school and regional competitions.

Three times in high school his projects advanced to the California State Science Fair.

As a pre-med student at UCLA, Schekman studied DNA replication, which led him to graduate work in molecular biology at Stanford.

It was after he was offered an assistant professorship at Berkeley in 1976 that Schekman threw himself into the study of yeast.

The genetic composition of yeast cells is far less complex than that of human cells, making them far easier to study and manipulate.

Schekman embarked on his studies in hopes that uncovering the machinery of secretion in yeast cells would help science understand the same process in human cells, a basic assumption that has been affirmed in three decades of research.

"The pathway is fundamentally the same," he said.

The El Cerrito resident said it is gratifying to see so many practical uses come out of his research, and to gain national recognition. "But what has always turned me on are the fundamental discoveries in figuring out how nature works," he said.

Alameda remembers fallen mayor

By Susan Fuller
TIMES STAFF WRITER

ALAMEDA — This island town known for Victorian homes and tree-lined streets said farewell to Mayor Ralph Appezzato on Saturday, with small-town kitsch, military pomp and international flair.

Appezzato, whose name will be on the November ballot for Alameda County supervisor, died Monday at age 67 of a self-inflicted gunshot. The retired Marine colonel was diagnosed five months ago with prostate cancer.

Speakers and musicians at the memorial aboard the USS Hornet, now a floating museum, remembered Appezzato for his devotion to Alameda, compassion and self-effacement. He received military honors from the Marine Corps.

Mezzo-soprano Frederica von Stade, an Alameda resident and family friend, sang Cesar Franck's "Panis Angelicus."

"I'm proud of not just what he did but why," said acting Mayor Al DeWitt.

"He had a vision of what Alameda could become."

Appezzato used both political clout and personal labor in projects for common people — building a skateboard park, purchasing Mastick Senior Center and keeping the Midway Shelter for the homeless open.

He was leading the city through negotiations with the Navy, hoping to get 1,000 acres of the former Alameda Naval Air Station.

"He thought the job was simple and straightforward: Just do the right thing," said City Councilwoman Beverly Johnson, repeating one of Appezzato's oft-repeated phrases. He wouldn't tell Johnson, now in a four-way mayoral race, what the right thing was, she said.

"The right thing" wasn't always obvious or easy for Appezzato. When he was elected mayor in 1994, he was confronted by passionate advocates on both sides of a proclamation recognizing the gay community. After two years of divisive disputes, Appezzato converted from a silent opponent to a vocal supporter of the proclamation. Appezzato frequently said that he was mayor of all the city, not a narrow constituency.

He worked at the volunteer position nearly full time, enjoying most the small-town events like the Fourth of July parade, City Hall tours for school children and ribbon cuttings.

"My father is kicking himself right now because this is the kind of event he loved," said son David Appezzato. About 500 people attended at the memorial.

John Appezzato attributed his twin brother's character to their mother, who was widowed with three young children.

Lacking Social Security, she went to work in sweatshops, sewing six days a week for her children's education, he said. She died in April.

After the March primary, Appezzato told state Sen. Don Perata, D-Oakland, about his cancer.

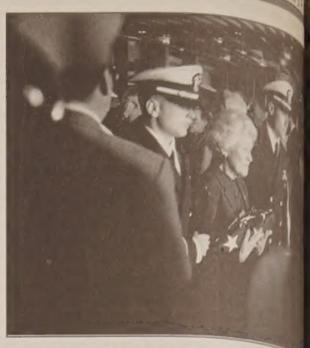

"He was very worried about the campaign, not for himself but for you," Perata said. "He didn't want to let anyone down."

The mayor nearly eliminated public appearances, other than City Council meetings, after his July announcement that he had cancer.

"He did as much as he could for as long as he could," Johnson said.

The family prefers contributions to Alameda Special Olympics (AUSD, 2200 Central Ave., Alameda 94501); Alameda Meals on Wheels (P.O. Box 2534, Alameda 94501); Garden Branch of Children's Hospital Oakland (747-52nd St., Room 206, Oakland, 94609); or Alameda Boy Scout Council (1714 Everett St., Alameda, 94501).

Potter said she wants to bring "worthy" projects to the city and support regional efforts that address traffic congestion and schools.

"The time is right for progressive leadership in the city," Potter said.

Each candidate said they supported bringing the specialty grocer Trader Joe's to El Cerrito Plaza. Potter said that as a planning commissioner, she voted in favor of the store's use permit. Abelson said the city staff managed to attract the grocery store while she was mayor. Perka did a mailing campaign urging the store to locate there.

Perka added that she wanted to maintain city sports fields and playground equipment and led the effort to lower the Measure A tax from $58 to $44.

Perka and Abelson are completing their first terms in office. Potter has been a planning commissioner for six-and-a-half years and is running for council for the first time.

At the end of the forum, the El Cerrito Democratic Club voted to endorse Potter, as she was the only Democrat running. Members had only two choices on their ballot: Potter or a vote to endorse no one. Perka and Abelson are Republicans.

Absentee ballots available on-line

BAY CITY NEWS SERVICE

Soon, California voters will no longer need to leave the comfort of their own homes to apply for absentee ballots and vote thanks to a bill by state Assembly Speaker Pro Tem Fred Keeley, D-Boulder Creek.

Gov. Gray Davis on Monday signed AB 2277, which authorizes local elections officials to allow voters to apply for an absentee ballot over the Internet.

Keeley believes more people will vote as a result of this bill, saying that voter participation can only be improved through the use of current and emerging technology. The bill provides local elections officials with a tool to make voting more convenient and increase access to absentee ballots.

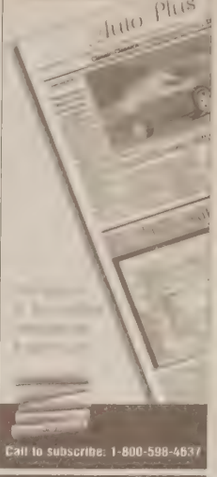

"Currently, 20 to 35 percent of voters cast their votes by absentee ballot in California's elections," the assemblyman said.

Under existing law, an application for an absentee ballot must be made in writing and must include certain information, such as the voter's name, address, address to which the ballot will be mailed, and the voter's signature.

AB 2277 also calls on the Secretary of State to design an electronic application form that is interactive and can be completed through a local elections office's secure Web site.

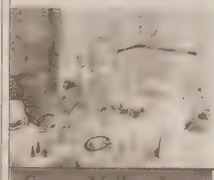

The non-downloadable form will allow a registered voter to enter in the required information, submit the form directly to the local elections department and receive a ballot. Keeley explains that the process will be similar to a consumer checking his or her bank information or paying bills over the Internet.

munity. He said he learned a lot listening to residents as a staff member to the city's traffic and safety commission and would like other officers to have similar experiences.

He said he is happy about a local law enforcement block grant issued this year that gives the department more money to work with the Albany Police Activities League, which provides educational and recreational activities for children.

The grant will also allow overtime for officers to bring them in on days off.

"It's a simple thing, but simple things can work well if thought out," Bone said.

Bone said challenges the department faces include maintaining the level of law enforcement while dealing with the city's tight budget.

"We have limited dollars and we have to pick and choose how we spend them," he said.

The city began a nationwide search for a new police chief last spring, and with the help of a paid consultant, considered 60 applicants.

Mayor Peggy Thomsen said Bone was chosen for his vision for the department and experience.

"I think this will be a really smooth transition," Thomsen said.

Bone will be sworn in at 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 21, at the City Council Chambers, 1000 San Pablo Ave.

Outgoing chief Larry Murdo, who has held the post as elected chief for 16 years, will go into semi-retirement as a consultant to a regulatory commission that oversees police officers standards and training.

There used to be shellmounds along the slough that was drained in the 1920s for the Richmond Harbor. Others have been paved over or covered with buildings. Some sites have been lost to those who track them. Lightfoot showed a slide of some freight containers along railroad tracks in Richmond, believed to be Ellis Landing, a major shellmound site about 20 feet deep once studied by archaeologists; it became part of the vast Kaiser Permanente Shipyard complex during World War II and its exact location today is unclear.

"Many of these sites have been destroyed," Lightfoot said. Moreover, he said, "much of the coastal landscape has radically changed." Ellis Landing was once an island at high water, he said.

Yet other shellmound sites are being developed right now, prompting protests from Native Americans, historical preservationists and other activists. An example is a mixed-use development of shops, apartments and a movie theater complex along Emeryville's Shellmound Street, where more than 100 sets of human remains were found. American Indians consider the site sacred.

Developers earlier this year offered to build a memorial to the Ohlone people.

"I watched the wholesale destruction of dozens of human burials," said Striplen.

Panelist Randy Grandin, an amateur archaeologist who grew up hunting and fishing along the San Francisco and San Pablo Bay shores, urged members of the audience, which numbered about 50, to join the Shellmounders, a group of East Bay residents seeking to preserve shellmounds.

"If this was being done to a Christian or Jewish cemetery, it would be considered a hate crime," reads one of the group's fliers protesting the Emeryville development.

That project is only the latest indignity, as activists see it, to be visited on the Emeryville shellmound, a vast, 2,700-year-old site. In 1877, a dance pavilion was built on top of the mound as part of an amusement park dubbed Shell Mound Park. It was leveled in the last century to make way for chemical plants. Some human remains and artifacts ended up at UC Berkeley.

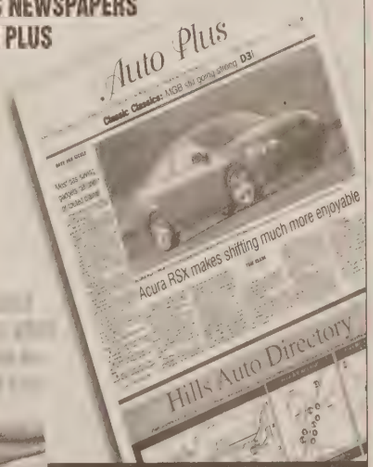

The group wants to protect a shellmound, or what is left of it, under the parking lot of Spenger's restaurant in Berkeley.

Striplen said the Ohlone, whom archeologists once believed to have disappeared, number about 3,000 to 4,000 today. That's too few to shoulder the challenge of preservation by themselves, he said, and appealed to the audience for help.

"Shellmounds represent our heritage," Streplin said. "They are the physical manifestation of our existence, experienced by thousands of generations of our people.

"Shellmounds and shellmound protection are a very important facet of the life of a contemporary Ohlone Indian."

"We drive over ...dge without thinking much about it, and yet it is crucial in linking the Oakmore neighborhood to Glenview and Montclair."

Indeed, in early promotional literature, Walter H. Leimert described it as "the bridge that wrought a miracle for Oakmore Highlands." This miracle stretched beyond just the bridge's immediate neighborhood, however. The bridging of the natural barrer that Sausal Creek formed left the hills further to the south open to development as well.

Sausal (a Spanish word for willow) Creek likely formed the boundry between two Huichin Indian tribes in the area. One tribe occupied the hills around present-day Holy Names College to the south.

The other tribe preferred the valley that Indian Creek shaped. Now underground, this creek flows through Oakland's Trestle Glen neighborhood and into Lake Merritt.

An ancient trail ran between the two settlements, along the canyon. After the native peoples departed, loggers in the massive redwood forest above the canyon turned this trail into a road to the Estuary.

At a point just east of the present-day Park Boulevard exit off Highway 13, Palo Seco Creek joins Sausal

THIS LATE-1920S AERIAL VIEW OF SAUSAL CREEK and the developing neighborhoods around it shows the importance of Leimert Bridge. The loop to the left of the bridge marked the end of Park Boulevard; it is now home to Corpus Christi Catholic Church. The "white spot" on the other side of the bridge marks the site of the Oakmore Highlands' shopping district. Oakland's Glenview district, in the photo's bottom left, has been developed, while the Oakmore district opposite is a busy construction site.

PALO SECO CREEK LOGGERS — both young and old — take a moment from their labors to pause for the camera. The mill at Palo Seco Creek was the first to make use of steam, rather than muscle power to turn the neighboring massive trees into managable timber for the trip to the Oakland Estuary.

Creek. At this juncture, the first steam-powered lumber mill in the redwoods turned the massive trees into logs for their journey to the Estuary down present-day Park Boulevard and 13th Avenue. If the loggers had any reason to cross Sausal Creek, they had no need of a bridge.

This changed with the advent of real estate development in the 1920s. Walter Leimert realized the need for a bridge across the canyon: he needed to connect his latest housing development to downtown Oakland.

Construction of the "Sausal Creek Arch Bridge" started in June 1925. Alameda County Surveyor George A. Posey (for whom the Posey Tube beneath the Oakland Estuary is named) supervised the construction. When they finished, Posey and his team, the Park Boulevard Company, had built the largest single span bridge in existence at the time: the 117-foot high bridge measures 357 feet across. The bridge contains 2,600 cubic yards of cement and 400,000 pounds of reinforcing steel.

The auto, streetcar and pedestrian bridge served its purpose. It brought Oakmore Highlands within commuting distance of Oakland and encouraged real estate development in the once inaccessible hills between the creek and the area's second logging road at present-day 35th Avenue.The bridge "literally hoists these unspoiled oak-clad knolls and hillslopes into the very heart of the town." Leimert's bridge had truly "wrought an miracle, one that you can enjoy this Sunday at 11 a.m.

Tickets for the tour that follow the Leimert Bridge ceremony cost $30 in advance, $35 day of tour, and $25 for OHA members. Call OHA at 510-763-9218 for tickets and details.

Just after Councilmember Dick Spees places a plaque on the Leimert bridge this Sunday at 11 a.m., 10 distinctive homes and gardens will be open for a self-guided tour in the hillside neighborhood of Oakmore Highlands in Oakland, nestled between Piedmont and Montclair.

The congenial neighborhood — filled with charm, trees, and panoramic views — has never before been featured on a home tour. Mediterranean, Rustic Tudor, and Monterey Colonial homes from the 1920s and '30s designed by Miller & Warnecke, Guy

Tied to our belongings

TARPOFF AND

Return to January 1998, #227 in a series of true experiences in real estate

A friend once told me about a man whose house burned down with everything he owned in it. When I expressed sympathy, my friend assured me that the man was relieved by his loss. He was glad to be suddenly free of his belongings. Shortly after the fire he bought a camper, lashed to the back a new motorcycle, and hit the road.

That's all I know about the story. Maybe the man replaced some clothes and blankets, a few books, got a new frying pan, and he is still traveling. Or maybe by now he's bought another house and is filling it up with all sorts of thingsagain.

To some degree we are all slaves to our belongings. We lock them up, insure them, keep them out of the rain.

Sometimes, depending on their value to ourselves and to others, we pay to keep them in vaults and safe deposit boxes. We install alarm, lighting systems, and locked gates on our property; some hire security guards.

We bring things home piecemeal; use, display, stash them. It doesn't take long to fill space.

Sometimes we clean out, sort through our things because the clutter is bothering us or because we're moving. We may discard items; others will be taken to the garage, basement or attic. Or we'll rent a storage unit and house all our excess there.

Not everything we save is valuable, of course, not even to us. A lot of the time we don't have any idea what we've got. We save things we think we might find a use for someday, papers and books we might read sometime, things belonging to someone else that we're keeping for them.

Years ago I worked for a man who had stacks of junk mail on his desk and around it on the floor. Once a year when he went on vacation, he actually went to the trouble of taking it all with him. He intended to read it, now that he had time, because there might be something he wouldn't want to miss. Every year he'd return from his trip, the mail still unopened.

We've known a number of pack rats who save everything. From top to bottom, their houses are so filled with stuff that floors, walls, even ceilings are no longer visible. We've seen rooms that are full to the door, making entry, even one step inside, impossible. At least one collector whose house we were in seemed to own quite

Which of These Costly Homeseller Mistakes Will You Make When You Sell Your Home?

EAST BAY - A new report has just been released which reveals 7 costly mistakes that most homeowners make when selling their home, and a 9 Step System that can help you sell your home fast and for the most amount of money.

This industry report shows clearly how the traditional ways of selling homes have become increasingly less and less effective in today's market. The fact of the matter is that fully three quarters of home sellers don't get what they want for their home and become disillusioned and - worse - financially disadvantaged when they put their home on the market.

As this report uncovers, most home sellers make 7 deadly mistakes that cost them literally thousands of dollars. The good news is that each and every one of these mistakes is entirely preventable.

In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a free special report entitled "The 9 Step System to Get Your Home Sold Fast and For Top Dollar".

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your FREE copy of this report, call 1-800-363-7050 and enter ID#1018. You can call anytime, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

Call NOW to learn how to avoid costly buyer mistakes before you purchase your next home.

LOIS HARRIS, REALTOR

Scented candles, incense, fragrance sprays and room fresheners may all have their place. Still, as some buyers who come to view your home may have sinus problems, allergic reactions, or simply aversions to many of these, do avoid their use. Out of sight, out of mind, I said, although occasionally the thought of so many stored-for-another-day-items became pretty scary. I told my husband that if he died before I did, I was going to give the warehouse key to a hauler and just let him take it all.

The years passed and the monthly rent on the space rose from around $75 to $160. Several years ago when we separated, my husband decided it was costing him a lot of money to store things he was probably never going to need, so he emptied out the warehouse.

It must have been a formidable task. The only thing he brought me from the collection was a baby buggy. I hadn't missed it; nor have I thought of anything else I might have once stored there.

I estimate that it cost us around $30,000 for storage rent. We might have gone to Europe a bunch of times instead.

aking on a real challenge: the fixer-upper ow many of you have often hought much you'd like to buy nd "fix-upper," do the necessary ork yourself, then turn around nd sell it? In this article, you'll now Landon Dirkson, a ember of the Glass-Sabine team, ave done just that! And to prove hey can do it again that the world is in-eed a small place, the Glassabine team's Judith Glass re-ently caught up with Landon hile he was on holiday in Lon-on, England.

lass-Sabine Team: So, Lan-on, after all our adventures in he Bay Area real estate — from the lats of Berkeley to a parkside set-ing in Piedmont — here we are ou're sipping it over a cup of afternoon tea in London. I know our eaders would love to hear about our process of buying, restoring nd then re-selling homes. What rought you down this path?

andon Dirkson: Well, as you now, I have a rather demanding day job" but I still have a lot of ntrepreneurism for the home restora-ion process. And I really want to mphasize that what I do is re-ot remodel. It is an incredible release for my creative side or me, it is a very feasible nd occupation. For a "type
" with a lot of energy, it works ell!

GST: Your restoration of omes definitely takes a lot of ork – and time! We've rovided you in action and know ow hard you work at your so-alled avocation; it is very time-onsuming, and really all-con-uming. You hardly stop long nough to eat a meal – we've een all those fast-food contain-rs in your waste baskets! You re not only working during the ime of your regular job, but you re working as the general con-actor of your project.

LD: That's true, however, that omething has changed with each
ne. Determining what it is that I could do on my own, and what I needed to hire out is always different with each project. With the first house, I frankly wasn't sure what was going to happen in terms of the scheduling, the work, the cost – you name it. Obviously, with each subsequent house, my revenue pool has softened up, and I'm able to pay for more outside contractors and craftsmen. I always assume the role of general contractor but interestingly, I have discovered there are some things that I can do well – and actually prefer to do myself.

THE GLASS-SABINE TEAM

House Talk

GST: Like what?

LD: Well, for one thing, plumbing! Plumbing is probably is the one thing that, next to electrical work (which I never do on my own, by the way) is the job that most people find terrifying. But, frankly, if it leaks and water comes out, you can see it and know that "it's broke." Plumbing problems can be relatively easy to repair, and often much less expensive or difficult than you first think; sometimes it's just a trip to the home improvement store and the job is done!

GST: Many of the homes that you have bought, restored and re-sold have been in Berkeley, and you always have proper permits. From working in real estate, we know that many buyers assume that there can be difficulties with the permit approval and inspection process in the City of Berkeley. Has this been your experience?

LD: Well, basically, before you even purchase a house, you have a clear idea of the condition of the house and any potential problems There is always a Pest Report, indicating any damage from termites or decay. Very often, problems that are included in a pest report are located in areas that I will be repairing or replacing anyway, so when you review a pest report and break it down into smaller pieces, even if the numbers seem staggeringly high, it is often not nearly as bad as it first seems.

Anything that you are hiring out, of course, needs to be inspected. But as I prefer to think of my projects as restoring, not remodeling, there have only been a couple of occasions where I've needed to have inspectors come through and look at my work when I have made additions above and beyond what was there originally. As you know, I don't move mountains; I restore. So when you are restoring, you eliminate a lot of the inspection aggravation.

GST: Well, I do remember a house you bought in Berkeley's Thousand Oaks district and I know you added a full bathroom to that house. So how did that work out?

LD: That house was a great find. The owner had recently passed away and the house was in a state of disarray, but it had been in the same family that it was built for in the early 1900's.

Right away, I had a very good feeling about the house, and of course, the setting in that wonderful, quiet neighborhood. However, in terms of modern conveniences, the house was lacking a second bathroom. So in that case, in order to create a master suite, I was able to rearrange the doors a hallway that was actually too long and served no real purpose.

I moved a door to connect the original bath to the master bedroom. Then at the end of that same hallway, I used an oversized entry closet to create a second bathroom. In terms of getting the permits for the new bath, the trick was to pull a permit for just exactly what I was doing which was plumbing.

I pulled a plumbing permit for a new toilet and was able to obtain the permit over the counter at the City of Berkeley office; unlike an overall building permit needing design review and other requirements, a plumbing permit is simple. In this particular case, I had a sub-contractor who worked with the building inspector on the placement of the fixtures.

We were a little tight for space but because it was a one-on-one conversation between the plumber and the plumbing inspector, and because we weren't adding any square footage to the house, the inspector was able to sign off on it right on the spot.

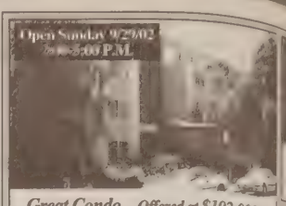

GST: I've seen you in action, and I know that when you are looking for your next project, you have a really good eye for seeing the potential of a house. You also have excellent taste and a built-in sense of what constitutes a good buy in real estate. However, your projects still have to make good business sense. So when you "do the math" before you buy a property, what is your criteria? Do you apply a certain formula?

LD: There is no particular formula. There's the cost of the house, the cost of money during the renovation period, and the cost of necessary improvements. Of course, the cost of improvements is a skill you learn very quickly as you go along!

There's no magic because I pretty much know the price of fixtures and appliances at the beginning of a project; the unknown for me is always the time factor and whether I'll be able to do all the work myself or end up hiring someone else to help out. In terms of the end result, there's no equation. It's all about the neighborhood, and making the house be as attractive and inviting as possible to potential buyers.

Regarding the gain, it's always different, and I've always been surprised and very happy with the result! The trick is not to be greedy — and you have to be willing to finish your project — and move on to the next!

BY DON AND DAVE RUNYAN
U-BILD

As common in law offices today as they were 100 years ago, traditional lawyer's bookcases are designed for storing expensive law books. Commonly built from oak, the style is characterized by individual stacking compartments, or cases, fronted by glass doors. The doors allow for total visibility while protecting each case's contents from dust and dirt.

This feature also makes a lawyer's bookcase ideal for displaying almost anything else and now you don't have to pass the bar to enjoy one. This do-it-yourself version features the classic styling of the originals without the expense of an antique or even modern reproduction.

The project requires about 40 board feet of oak and a sheet of oak plywood, along with dowel pins, glass, hardware and paraffin wax. The bookcase is built one case at a time, following the same steps each time, then sanded, stained and stacked.

The glass doors lift out and slide back into the bookcase on a unique dowel-pin guide system.

The completed lawyer's bookcase measures five feet tall by four feet wide by one foot deep. In the version pictured here, the bottom case measures 16 inches tall the top one is 12 inches tall and the two middle cases are 14 inches tall, but the combination is up to the builder.

See U-BILD, Page B12

Enscoe captures first ACCAL meet

■ Berkeley runner holds off Alameda's Reichert to pace Yellow Jackets

By Orlando Molina
STAFF WRITER

PREP CROSS COUNTRY

RICHMOND — With nine out of the runners donning the same uniform, the Alameda High School girls cross country team had no problems clinching a team victory in the season's first Alameda Contra Costa Athletic League meet on Wednesday.

The Hornets had very little competition from the get go as only three runners from two other schools competed alongside them, practically handing Alameda the win before the race had even started.

Furthermore, Alameda was handed a clean sweep when it was discovered that those three racers had inadvertently strayed from Point Pinole's three-mile course, disqualifying them.

"It's unfortunate," Hornets coach Brian Lodge said.

Alameda's Corinne Roberts cruised to a first-place finish in a time of 20 minutes and 52 seconds.

"We ran as a team, it was nice to be all together," she said. "It's much more fun to have more competition, but it was a good workout for me."

Of the Hornets' nine racers, seven finished the course in under 22 minutes. Among them were Jill Zarifis (21:17) and Nicole Rodrigues (21:23), who took second and third place.

"We're looking to continue dominating and be NCS contenders," Roberts added. "It's strong for our future to have this many girls finish in under 22 minutes."

But things were much tighter for the Hornets on the boys' side as Berkeley toppled Alameda 25-33 for a team win.

Last year's ACCAL champion, Alex Enscoe, led the Yellow Jackets to victory again in a time of 15:56. Enscoe, a junior, held off Alameda's ailing top runner, Yoji Reichert, who was battling a cold.

"I was just hanging back, following (Reichert) at first. Then in the final 800 meters I started kicking," Enscoe said. "I'm not confident with hills, yet, but it was a good first meet."

According to Hornets' assistant coach, Bruce Hicks, Reichert's cold almost kept him out of the race, but Reichert did not want to hand over the win without a fight.

"I was not 100 percent, but I tried to make the most of it," Reichert said. "I wanted to beat Berkeley today. I had to try."

El Cerrito's patience pays off vs. St. Mary's

■ Gauchos turn ship around after a sloppy first half against the Panthers

By Darcy Couch
STAFF WRITER

EL CERRITO — Patience paid off for El Cerrito High School's football team Friday night.

In the first half, the Gauchos fumbled the ball over twice in their own territory and watched St. Mary's jump ahead 20-7 with an 11-yard blocked punt return. But the second half marked a turning of the tide that washed El Cerrito (1-1) to a 29-20 nonleague victory over the Panthers.

On their first possession of the second half, the Panthers (0-2) marched 59 yards to the El Cerrito 5-yard line. That's when the Gauchos defense had final say and squelched the drive at fourth-and-three.

The offense took over and marched back, sparked by a 23-yard pass up the middle from Danny Gatewood to James Cannon. The play brought the Gauchos to their 41-yard line. Ryan Shafer took a screen pass to the Panthers 41, John Norman lofted it to the 39, and Gatewood found Mario Cox for a 25-yard gain that set up an eventual 5-yard touchdown reception by Josh Vincent.

The score put El Cerrito back in business for the fourth quarter.

"Momentum started to switch in the second half," St. Mary's coach Jay Lawson said. "It's a game of momentum swings and emotion and it definitely went El Cerrito's way in the second half. We let a good ballclub get in the game."

With St. Mary's lead cut to 20-14, El Cerrito followed up a three-and-out defensive series with an interception that gave the Panthers the ball at the Gauchos' 25-yard line. Fred Hives went on the attack but had the ball punched loose. El Cerrito's Vincent fell on it, and the Gauchos had momentum back in their favor.

Norman took the handoff and stayed on his feet for a 23-yard scamper. Gatewood followed with a 54-yard pass to Phillip Pique, who caught the ball over his shoulder and carried it into the end zone to tie the game at 20-20. That brought kicker George Magganas up. His kick hit the crossbar and flipped up and through for a 21-20 El Cerrito lead it wouldn't relinquish.

The Gauchos defense held the Panthers at fourth-and-one, taking over at the St. Mary's 43. Norman did the job once again, streaking for a 39-yard rush to the 4-yard line to set up a 3-yard touchdown of his own. Gatewood took the high snap on the PAT attempt and lobbed a pass to Norman in the end zone for a two-point conversion that ballooned the Gauchos to a 29-20 advantage.

Big second half propels Berkeley past Liberty

By Kibby Kleiman
STAFF WRITER

Berkeley High School exploded for 49 second half points in its season opener and buried Liberty 55-14 Friday night.

Yellow Jackets sophomore quarterback Patrick Henderson picked off two Liberty passes and ran both in for touchdowns in his varsity debut.

The host Yellow Jackets (1-0) tied a 6-6 halftime score on the very first play of the second half. Senior tailback Aaron Boatwright grabbed the Liberty kickoff and ran 95 yards untouched into the end zone giving Berkeley a 13-6 lead they would never relinquish.

Berkeley, opportunistic throughout the evening, didn't score its first offensive touchdown until midway through the third quarter. Senior Craig Hollman hauled in quarterback Jeff Hellman's 25-yard pass deep in the end zone, and Berkeley had a 26-7 advantage.

Henderson's second interception for a touchdown, a 25-yard jaunt down the sideline, capped off a 28-point third quarter and allowed the Yellow Jackets to coast the rest of the way.

Berkeley coach Matthew Bissell was pleased about his team's opening effort.

"We came to play today", Bissell said, "We executed well. We stepped up when we needed to in the second half. I saw a lot of things I liked tonight."

One of the things Bissell liked was his defense playing tough. The Yellow Jackets also scored on a fumble recovery caused by a sack.

"I think we got lucky and that we made a lot of our own luck tonight too" Bissell said. "It was an exciting game for us, and I think for the fans, too. I hope it's just the start of a great year."

Liberty (0-2) tied the game when senior fullback Alejandro Rivera broke a tackle and rambled 74 yards for a second quarter score. The Lions won the battle of the statistics quite handily, outrushing the home team 223-200, and in passing yards 132-59. Liberty also gained more first downs than Berkeley.

It was turnovers that doomed the Lions. Two lost fumbles, a muffed kick cover, and the two intercepted passes put Liberty in a hole it could not dig out of.

Henderson was thrilled with his first varsity game.

"I can't say that I did it alone," he said. "I have to give most of the credit to the defensive line, who did all the blocking for me. But to score two touchdowns in my first varsity game — it's a great way to start my career here."

McBride sparks CCC win over Diablo Valley

■ Comets quarterback passes for 235 yards to hold off a strong Vikings comeback

By Marcus Thompson II

JC FOOTBALL

SAN PABLO — Joe McBride completed 24 of 35 passes for 235 yards and two touchdowns as Contra Costa College staved off a spirited comeback by Diablo Valley College in a 27-22 nonconference win Saturday night.

The host Comets (1-1) led by 21 at the half and dominated on both sides of the ball.

McBride managed the Contra Costa offense to near perfection in the first half. He overcame an ineffective rushing attack by hitting his wide receivers on screens and quick slants across the middle. Demetrius Williams was his favorite target.

McBride hit Rickey Gatewood (11 receptions, 67 yards) for an 11-yard score to give the Comets a 7-0 lead. A 10-yard punt by Vikings kicker Justin Davis, who had a strong wind in his face, set up Contra Costa at the Diablo Valley 13. Three plays later, Cameron Thurston scored on a 3-yard run.

Meanwhile, the Comets defense was nothing short of impressive. Linemen Larry McGrew and Germond Ayers lived in the Vikings backfield, combining for four first-half sacks. Contra Costa held Diablo Valley (0-2) to 36 total yards in the first half with five sacks and three interceptions.

With just under four minutes left in the second quarter, McBride hit Ira Crump on a 12-yard pass to cap a 12-play, 65-yard drive that put Contra Costa ahead 21-0.

But the Vikings mounted a methodical second-half comeback. Diablo Valley got a safety midway through the third quarter after a bad snap on a Comets punt attempt sailed out of the end zone. On the ensuing drive, Vikings quarterback Ashley Ballenger (16-of-46 passing for 169 yards) threw a 15-yard screen pass to Paul Alberta to cut the Contra Costa lead to 21-8.

After a 35-yard Francisco Castellon field goal put the Comets ahead 24-8, Diablo Valley scored again as Ballenger hit Sam Meyer for a 24-yard score. With momentum now on the Vikings' side, Ballenger connected with Alberta again on the next series for a 34-yard hookup. After a failed 2-point conversion, Contra Costa's lead was 24-22.

But with the poise expected from a sophomore, McBride led the Comets on a 10-play, clock-consuming drive that set up a 27-yard Castellon field goal.

FISHING REPORT

By Curtis Pashelka

PACIFIC OCEAN

Captain Steve Bales of the New Fisherman III reported that salmon fishing improved this weekend as compared with last. On Sunday, scores ranged up to 24 salmon. Not every boat did that well, but the numbers were up from last weekend. On Monday, only a few boats were out and scores ranged from under a fish per rod to limits. A couple boats had eight limits each, with the biggest salmon being 32 pounds. Scores improved Tuesday, with two boats taking home 12 limits of salmon. The bigger salmon ranged from 25-30 pounds. The rest of the boats had a salmon per rod to near limits. After a slowdown of about five weeks, Bales indicated that more salmon now are coming into the Marin County coast. Things were a bit slower Wednesday, Bales said. As of noon, most boats were averaging about half to one fish per rod, with the largest being about 25 pounds.

On Saturday, captain Bill Smith of Riptide Sportfishing and Whale Watching was salmon fishing a couple of miles off the Pacifica coast. They caught two fish within about five minutes of arriving. Nine anglers finished the day with nine salmon ranging from 10-19 pounds.

James Smith of the Happy Hooker had a good weekend fishing the Marin County coast. On Saturday they caught 25 limits of rockfish, 32 ling cod and three halibut. On Sunday they snared 340 rock fish for 37 anglers and 51 ling cod.

THE BAYS

SUISUN: Jordona Santiago of Martinez Bait and Tackle noted that Buoys 4 and 6 still are producing sturgeon and stripers are being caught at the Glomar. Go about 20-25 feet down for the stripers and about 30 feet for the sturgeon. Ken Keyes of Martinez caught a 31.9-pound, 45-inch striper on bullheads at the Mothball Fleet. Nicky Tekelidis of Concord caught a 85.2-pound, 71.5-inch sturgeon at Buoy 4 and Sean Lenihan of Martinez caught a 69.5-inch, 59.4-pound sturgeon on grass shrimp at Eckley Pier.

Big Cut continues to attract sturgeon. Enid Merchant caught a 66-inch, 72-pounder on grass shrimp, Mubshir Shah caught a 73-pound, 69-incher on grass shrimp, and 86-year-old Diesel Dan caught a 68-pounder. Brent and Brandon Manley caught nine sturgeon at the Mothball Fleet, but their 62-inch, 65-pounder was their only keeper. Pete English caught a 35-pound striper on bullheads at Middle Ground.

THE RIVERS

SACRAMENTO RIVER, ANDERSON: Kirk Portocarrero of Outdoor Adventures Sport Fishing reported that fishing for king salmon is good. The water is clear and some limits are being caught. The average salmon is between 20-35 pounds, with some up to 40 pounds. Look for larger fish later in November and December. Anglers are using flatfish lures and bouncing roe.

SACRAMENTO RIVER, REDDING TO ANDERSON: Rainbow trout fishing is rated fair to good, as the river is producing 10-20 trout per day. Anglers should spin using flatfish lures and fly fish using glo-bugs and bead head fox's poophas Nos. 16-18 and brassies, nymphing with indicators.

NAPA RIVER, VALLEJO: Roger Nye of Norm's Bait and Tackle says a little bit of everything has been coming in, with the key word being little. Anglers have been catching smallish stripers on bullheads around Dutchman's and South Slough. Some steelhead also have been caught on the waterfront. There have been a few salmon and sturgeon caught on the river, but for the most part they have been slow on the bite.

THE DELTA

The salmon have arrived here, as Delta anglers are hooking good-sized fish at the mouth of the Sacramento River and up to the Isleton Bridge. Audie Urbano of Hap's Bait and Tackle said that wiggle warts, mag warts, blue fox and kwik fish are producing good action, and silver, blue, red and chartreuse are the most effective colors. Several salmon in the 15-30 pound range were hooked this week. Due to the warm waters, most of the salmon still are hanging around the main river in cooler areas such as Decker Island and the Rio Vista Bridge.

A few large striped bass have been picked up this week around Decker Island and the Old Dairy, feeding shad bait or trolling broken backed rebels or bombers on shallow water.

The Coats brothers of Pittsburg had success fishing for salmon up the Feather River, catching 11 over two days. They caught a 32-pounder and 27-pounder on the first day, and nine more the second day that did not get weighed. Mike Pickell caught a 34-pound salmon on wiggle warts at Rio Vista. Willie Gallup of Vallejo caught a 37 pounds of catfish, the largest 9 pounds, on crawdads at Bethel Island, and Lionel Young caught a 21-pound catfish on clams at Twitchell Island. Brothers Brett, Anthony and Ryan Saylor caught a 4-pound striper at the Antioch Marina on anchovies, David Dutra caught a 9-pound striper on anchovies at Sherman Lake, and Jared Lewis caught a 14½-pound striper, his first keeper, on rattletraps at Sherman Lake. Greg Hjort of Oakley caught a 35-pound sturgeon on grass shrimp at Middle Ground and Dean Boatrup caught a 55-pound sturgeon on grass shrimp at Webb's Point.

THE LAKES

SAN PABLO RESERVOIR, EL SOBRANTE: Bait fishing for trout has improved over the past week with a lot of limits being had. The hot spots are Bobber Beach and the rockwall. Floated nightcrawlers are working best. Trolling for trout is good. The best areas are Big Slide and the Tower. Chartreuse colors are the best bet; troll from the surface to a depth of 18 feet. Catfishing has slowed a bit. Chicken liver, anchovies and mackerel are still your best bet. Michael Smith of Walnut Creek caught an 18-pound, 6.4-ounce catfish at the main rec area using lures. Bass fishing is rated fair to good. Try crankbaits off points and at the Launch area. Crappie fishing is slow.

LAKE DEL VALLE, LIVERMORE: Two trout plants in the past two weeks have resulted in some good fishing, as a few limits are being reported. Orange colored crave and Powerbait has been working well in the small coves. Anglers are averaging up to two per rod. Trolling for trout has been reported as slow at the shallow depths. Catfishing has slowed, but they are still the big bite on the lake. Anglers are averaging up to two per rod at 3-4 pounds each. Chicken livers, mackerel and anchovies are all working. Try just south of the marina for bank fishing, and down at the coves at the back of the big bays for boaters.

Bluegill and red ear sunfish are biting throughout the lake. Try soaking chunks of nightcrawlers under a bobber, near the weeds and cover. Bass fishing has picked up a little this week with a few being caught in the early morning and late afternoon.

LOS VAQUEROS, BRENTWOOD: The action is still very good trolling small trout lures at the mouth of Peninsula Cove, as numerous limits have been coming in. Bank fishing is good at Oak Point and by the Marina using Powerbait or at the south cove using a nightcrawler with a 4-foot leader under a bobber. The bass and catfish action has been very good at the submerged trees using rattletraps or nightcrawlers. Some bluegill have been taken in coves around the lake on worms. Don McCall of Danville caught a 2.5-pound trout on Powerbait at the Knoll. Chris Wright of Oakley caught four largemouth bass and one trout at the submerged trees on a blue/silver Rattletrap, and Tom Delaurre of Pleasanton caught a limit of trout trolling a sockeye slammer behind a sling-blade dodger.

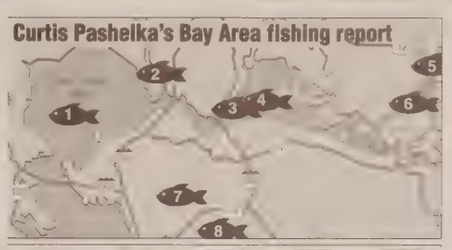

LAFAYETTE RESERVOIR, LAFAYETTE: Fishing continues to be good for bass, catfish, bluegill and perch. Nightcrawlers prove to be the most productive bait, along with plastic jigs for bass. Bass are being caught from the south end on worms, catfish from the handicap dock on chicken livers and perch on everything from the L dock. Trout is being caught early in the morning, mostly from the boats in the east cove. Rainbow trout plants will begin the second week of October. An 11.8-pound largemouth bass was caught off the aluminum rail dock near the visitors center LAKE CAMANCHE, BURSON: There's limits of trout to be had for overnighters at the dam. Bait anglers should anchor near the buoy line or just to the south of the spillway. Use Powerbait from 42-55 feet during the day and as shallow as 25 feet at night for Rainbows. The best bet for trollers is to work from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. near the dam buoy line and spillway at depths of 45-58 feet. Use an R-Lure or No. 2 or 3 Needlefish in white or chartreuse. Upriver action should pick up this week since releases from Pardee are scheduled. If you wish to enjoy the canyon, use marshmallows or salmon eggs just off the bottom for best chances. Work from the bridge upward/eastward to Arkansas bend; late afternoon is the best time since the entire section of river is in the shade.

JACK LONDON YOUTH SOCCER

RESULTS OF SEPT. 21-22

Under-11 girls

Bay Oaks Breakaways 9, DVSC Freedom 0: The Breakaways traveled to Concord, happy for a morning matchup on the last day of summer. The Bay Oaks 11 had the edge in both experience and quickness, resulting in a one-sided match.

Early on, it became evident that the girls in blue were going to control the middle third, as Gabrielle Duhl and Erin Welter quickly set the tone. Keepers Kristyna Smith and Dominique Haskell had no trouble maintaining the combined shutout.

The Breakaway forwards were creating opportunities and continually looking for open mates. Hannah Rettig-Zucchi got two quick goals with Eileen Maes assisting, and then Mika Siegelman converted a fine ball from Kristine Nakada after a long run.

Jessica Herrera launched a pretty cross but the Freedom goalie was well-placed to smother the chance. Marissa Crosetti scored, Nakada found a tiny crease next to the near post, and Ariel Ahwah found Duhl open for a 6-nil lead at the half.

The Bay Oaks side continued to pass accurately and tried some new combinations. Rettig-Zucchi located Stacy DeRobertis-Theye, who just beat the DVSC keeper to the far post. Lisa Rosenthal made it 8-nil with her first goal of the season and Crosetti chipped a shot off the bar for her second goal of the day.

The Breakaways improved to 2-1-1 for the season and travel to Livermore for a tournament this weekend.

Under-10 boys

Rockridge 3, Rattlesnake Juniors 1: The Rattlesnakes faced a stiff challenge against an experienced Rockridge squad, which had won its previous match 9-nil. The undersized Montclair team came out very energetically, but a three-on-two breakaway at the 6-minute mark led to a well-placed shot from the edge of the box by Rockridge.

The 'Snakes pressed the attack and kept the ball on their offensive side with great passing and set-up from Daniel Cooper. Aaron Anderson disrupted several Rockridge attacks. Center halfback Kyle Gavce contributed speedy charges, switching from sideline to sideline. At 13 minutes, the Rattlers were able to get the equalizer when behind the fine teamwork of cousins Richie and Oscar Mendoza. Richie Mendoza sent a smart lead pass through the defenders that Oscar received at the top of the box. Oscar Mendoza dribbled twice, then beat the oncoming keeper with a shot to the right.

In the second period, Rockridge switched to a four-defender lineup to stifle the repeated RSJ buildups, and the action concentrated in the middle third. The 'Snakes kept pushing and kept possession for the majority of the play. But with the clock winding down, the Rockridge side took advantage of a Rattler misplay on defense and were able to take the lead on a well-finished one-on-one. For insurance, Rockridge added a late goal on a well-finished breakaway.

As the final whistle blew, the Rattlers raced off the field cheering themselves, not for the loss, but for how well they had played. Despite the loss, the Montclair boys felt great thinking that they gained important experience from facing tough competition and meeting it on equal terms for most of the match.

Under-8 girls

Cheetahs vs. Shooting Stars: In only their second game as a team, the Cheetahs put together a great effort at Shepherd Canyon, fitting of a seasoned squad. The game started out with the Shooting Stars making the first wave of attacks, but Cheetah goalie Adrienne Dahl came up with several great saves. Her great play served to fire up her teammates, and Samantha Hernandez used the motivation to take the ball nearly the entire length of the field to open the scoring.

Shooting Stars forward Jasmin Griggs made a great effort to get the equalizer and made several strong attempts at the net. To counter Griggs' solid play, Cheetahs forward Ashley Cisneros got her second goal of the season with a run up the right sideline and then a charge to the goal where she blasted a shot past the Stars goalie. As the Cheetahs were keeping the ball on the offensive half for long stretches at a time, the Shooting Stars placed Sheila Clapp in at forward. Clapp's impact soon was felt as she mounted repeated runs and dazzling dribbles off passes from fullback Kristi Fujimoto. Liliana Schmitt countered for the "Big Cats," bringing the ball well up the field, where one of her passes led to another Hernandez goal.

Young Cheetah Eden Gavce got her first touches of the ball for the season and made some aggressive escapes from "scrums" to take several balls into the box. It was a fine, well played game by both teams, and all the parents were proud of the effort their girls had made on a very hot afternoon.

Under-12 boys

Alameda Heat 5, Oakland Chivitas 5: The teams combined for a most exciting match, one featuring many shots, saves and lead changes. Chivitas — or "Little Goats" — named after the famous Mexican side Chivas of Guadalajara, scored the first goal. But Alameda quickly responded, as Dylan Lago scored the equalizer after collecting the ball squarely in the box off a pass from Nathaniel Williams.

Andrew Restivo's defensive talents ignited the game for Alameda. And midfielder Lago's knack for being in the right place at the right time was the key to his second goal. Markus Smith and Bryan Lee showed determination on the Heat front line by stealing the ball many times and creating a number of scoring opportunities. Before long, Restivo — displating both speed and fancy footwork — added a a third Alameda goal off a long kick.

Chivitas answered that goal, but Williams soon scored Alameda's fourth by tapping in a volley from five feet in front of the goal.

The two teams matched game plans on both ends of the pitch. Fullbacks James Powell, Danny Contreras, and Jason Hong acted as the Heat's steel curtain, turning away many Chivitas attacks.

Still, the Oakland squad persisted, scoring another goal. Markus Smith scored Alameda's final goal off of a lobbed pass from Cooper Freeman. Oakland, however, came back to knot the score the with the match's final goal just minutes before the whistle.

Raptors 2, Falcons 0: The strong defense of eye-on-the-ball halfback Tim Montoya — who played aggressively and did not let the ball get past him — was a major factor in the Raptors' shutout of the Falcons.

Others played key roles for the Raptors, too. Matthew Owens, for one, seemed to always be in the right place to block opposing rushes on goal. And even against a very strong Falcon defense, Raptors Sutton Murray and Alexi Keller were able to score. Casey Christ also kept the Falcons goalie busy with repeated shots.

Under-16 boys select

Rockridge Sting 4, Alameda United 3: Waters Edge Lodge Alameda United came up just short in a hard-fought match at Lincoln Middle School.

After falling behind by two goals, United fought back with three of its own before halftime. For the first, Eric Rush took an Oscar Rojas cross and headed it past a surprised Sting goalie. Later, Rush sent a perfect shot off the inside of the post for his second goal of the game. For Alameda's third goal, Darin Lago sent a high kick from a long way up the field that sneaked in under the crossbar to knot the score at 3-3 just before the half.

In the second half, United defenders Scott Roeder and Brian Scott pushed back several Sting attacks. Rockridge persisted, however, and hit a late goal to win the game.

BILL MANN
Multimedia Notes

Wilcox and KCBS still a good fit

FOR MORE THAN 25 YEARS, Jerry Wilcox covered the East Bay for one of the nation's top broadcast-news operations, all-news KCBS Radio, like the consummate pro he was. As we reported here last month, Wilcox retired from the big CBS-owned San Francisco station to relocate to Tucson with his wife, Alex, who took a job as CEO of a hospital there.

But Wilcox couldn't stay away long. It was obvious as we chatted at lunch the other day at the Berkeley marina that Wilcox was getting a bit restless in retirement. Besides, he had two grown sons still living here to visit.

"All I ever wanted to cover was the East Bay," says the native of upstate New York, who grew up on a farm there. "There's so much going on here. There was rarely a slow news day."

He says that over the years he was offered other beats by other San Francisco station, but Wilcox declined, preferring to work in the East Bay. On a typical day, Wilcox would leave his home in the hills above Hayward and cover two or three fires and/or accidents (perhaps farther away as Alamo), a Board of Supes meeting, and/or a press conference in Alameda. "I logged a lot of miles on those KCBS company cars," he says with a smile.

It's odd finally meeting Wilcox after 20 years of listening to his reports and hearing that familiar voice in person. Just the pro he is, Wilcox doesn't much like talking about himself. (He won't discuss his politics but I finally pried it out of him that he's a Democrat.)

The veteran newsman observes every word carefully when he sees me taking notes. Wilcox admits he's "a bit embarrassed" by his quick post-retirement return to the Bay Area. When I ask if he misses reporting, he says sheepishly, "I called KCBS and told them I'd be back here for a few days. So I'm working as a part-timer for KCBS for three days, doing fill-in."

"I'm also a bit embarrassed because they gave me a big going-away party at KCBS last month" (note: a well-deserved one) "and the Alameda Board of Supervisors put me on the agenda and each read a tribute. And now here I am, back on the air."

Not for long, alas. When you read this, Wilcox will be back in Tucson, getting restless again.

I asked Wilcox for his take on some prominent East Bay pols. As usual, he measured his words carefully.

On Jerry Brown: ""Extremely competent. I haven't figured out his personality, but that's right for Jerry is usually priority number one."

On Don Perata: "A good guy. Got to know him personally back when he was a county supervisor, and he truly cares a whole lot about people and many social issues. I've always been impressed by the man and his commitment."

Ex-Oakland City Manager Jerry Gardner: "Capable and disciplined."

Former Congressman Ron Dellums: "I liked Ron personally. There was a great dignity about him. He stuck with his principles. He worked with the rest of Oakland to get development going strong. No, I don't think his politics caused East Bay military bases to close. They would have closed anyway."

Former Oakland Mayor Lionel Wilson: "Lionel could be a grumpy as hell, even meanspirited at times, but he was a good man. He arrived at an important time in Oakland's history."

Congresswoman Barbara Lee: "I disagree with her vote [on] Sept. 11, but she's a class

Gyllenhaal exceptional in 'Secretary'

By Mary F. Pols
STAFF WRITER

Seeing an advance screening of the romantic sadomasochism movie "Secretary" in the company of dozens of dog-collar-wearing members of San Francisco's Society of Janus, as I did earlier this month, is somewhat akin to what it might be like to have Drew Barrymore accompany you to get a tattoo.

With Drew's gleeful encouragement, you could be enticed into acquiring multiple pieces of body art: a Chinese character, a butterfly and maybe someone's name on your posterior. With the Society of Janus around, you're likely to leave "Secretary" wondering why you ever objected to a good spanking.

You might ask, just what is the Society of Janus? I certainly did. Or rather, I asked myself why the usual advance screening crowd (aggressive middle-aged women, crowds of frat boys, children woefully past their bedtime accompanied by irresponsible parents) had been mysteriously replaced by a group of individuals clad in leather, stilettos and various other binding items of clothing. According to their Web site: "The Society of Janus is a non-profit, San Francisco-based education/ support organization devoted to the art of safe, consensual and non exploitative power exchange."

Director Steven Shainberg's "Secretary" is a movie about a young woman (Maggie Gyllenhaal) who exchanges some power with her boss (James Spader) in unusual ways. To sum up, he spanks her for making spelling mistakes, she likes it and mails him an earthworm, hoping for another spanking. Having heard about the film's premise, Janus members requested a special screening from the film's distributor. Lions Gate couldn't have asked for a more receptive crowd; they even giggled knowingly when a mousetrap appeared, while the few non-Janus types in the audience exchanged baffled looks.

The unexpected thing about "Secretary," an adaptation of a Mary Gaitskill story, is that its eroticism is likely to extend a leather-lad glove and tap any number of sexual nerds on the shoulder, sending shivers of unexpected and embarrassing arousal down their ramrod straight spines.

Others will just be grossed out and stomp off to the exit. That's fine: This is hard stuff to digest. Even before we get to the spanking, we have to watch Lee Holloway, Gyllenhaal's character, indulge in a sick and sad habit she's had since seventh grade: cutting herself. Technically she should be "over" this, since she just spent six months in a mental institution, but this is a young woman who craves an outer blossom for her inner pain.

The secretarial position with E. Edward Grey (Spader), attorney-at-law, is Lee's first job. Indications are Mr. Grey has had a good deal of turnover in the position; in front of his office is a permanent sign that says "Secretary Wanted," bordered with light bulbs, like a no vacancy sign. On her way in, looking like Little Red Riding Hood, only in a blue rain poncho, Lee encounters the last secretary, sobbing as she departs.

Spader plays Grey as a sort of classic Christopher Walken character, keeping his face immobile and employing a lot of pained silences. But there is something hypnotically attractive about him; when he whispers "less sugar in the coffee" to Lee, it is both an admonition and a come-on. Captivated both by the man and the opportunity to do something with herself, she tries her best to please him. The camera catches her at home in the bathtub, practicing saying the outgoing message for the law office's answering machine with a minxlike smile of pleasure on her face.

The main reason "Secretary" is so absorbing is Gyllenhaal. (She's going places and so is her brother Jake — whose latest movie, "Moonlight Mile," also opens today — so we all need a primer.) As Grey's instructions at work become increasingly perverse, Lee's face reflects puzzlement and sly interest in equal measure. She recognizes Grey's interest in inflicting pain and begins to contemplate what this can do for her. By the time he catches her cutting herself and gives her a carefully modulated lecture on the topic, she's rapt, ready for anything.

The spanking he administers shortly thereafter astonishes her, but she's not appalled. And we're less appalled than we might have thought, partly because Shainberg lulls us with the office's stylized, surreal kitsch; we never worry that this is a real place of business. It's a crutch. If he could keep us from being appalled in a realistic setting, "Secretary" would be a more honest film.

You could argue that being hurt by someone else, rather than hurting yourself, hardly seems preferable. Medical professionals can address that issue. But on a purely emotional level, "Secretary" makes a strong case that Lee, with her need for pain, and Grey with his need to give pain, are made for each other. Watch Lee, being made love to by her fluttery, eager young boyfriend, Peter (Jeremy Davies, flawlessly channeling nervous energy): "I didn't hurt you, did I?" he says, when the act whiffles to an end. Her "No" is so wistful, we know this girl just can't go straight.

Besides creating a palpable erotic pull between these characters, Shainberg's film pulls off the feat of getting even a naturally judgmental viewer to examine these special interests with a nonjudgmental eye and crave a nontraditional resolution. He had a hard time getting this film made for that very reason. In pitch meetings in Los Angeles, potential producers wanted Lee to "get over" her "problem," but he clung steadfast to his notion that this was a love story between two people who need each other for both unorthodox and orthodox reasons. More power to him: "Secretary" is weird, but it works.

MAGGIE GYLLENHAAL'S character, Lee Holloway, is willing to accommodate her employer's sadistic requests in "Secretary."

Sue Trigg stars in 'Shirley Valentine' at Masquers

JACK TUCKER
Community Theater

"SHIRLEY VALENTINE," by Willy Russell, is a one-woman show that received high praise when it played in London and New York, and it's being presented at the Masquers Playhouse in Point Richmond next weekend for four performances.

Offered by Envision, a challenging offshoot program of the regular Masquers season, the solo performance features Sue Trigg. The role was made famous by Pauline Collins on both sides of the Atlantic and in the 1989 U.S.-British film. Jan Brown is directing the production.

It should be a natural for English-born Trigg. The title character is middle-class British housewife who has a hunch there's more to life than she has experienced so far. She grabs at the chance to go to Greece with a girlfriend, sans husband, of course. There she has an "adventure" with a Greek fisherman and decides to stay.

Described as hilarious, moving and honest by critics, "Shirley Valentine" plays at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Oct. 4 and 5, and at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 6. Tickets are $8.

The Masquers Playhouse is at 105 Park Place, Point Richmond. Call 510-236-4988.

After she finishes the Masquers' gig, Trigg moves to Fremont's Stage One to repeat the role left open when the actress there had to be replaced.

SPANISH TRAGEDY: "Blood Wedding," a passionate, poetry-based tragedy by Spanish dramatist Federico Garcia Lorca, opens next Friday for six performances at the John and Jean Knox Center for the Performing Arts at Contra Costa College.

The play, written in 1933 and translated in 1939, is based on a true story of jealousy and death among the peasants of Andalusia. Michael Garcia and Tioni McCoy direct the production of the CCC drama department.

The Mother — all members of the tragic family are simply known by generic names — has lost in feuds with the Felix family all the menfolk in the family except her youngest son. She arranges a wedding for him and a young woman, the Bridegroom and the Bride. The chosen bride, however, is loved by Leonardo Felix of the deadly feuding family.

Leonardo and the Bride run away. The Bridegroom, guided by the Beggar Woman (Death) and the Moon (a young woodcutter), overtakes the lovers.

The Bridegroom and Leonardo kill each other, leaving the Mother alone in her empty house.

"Blood Wedding" marked a new departure in the modern poetic theater. It was followed by Garcia Lorca's great tragedies, "Yerma" (1935) and "La casa de Bernarda Alba" (1936).

Garcia Lorca was assassinated in August 1936 by Franco's Nationalists during the Spanish Civil War.

"Blood Wedding" plays at 8 p. m. Fridays and Saturdays, Oct., 4, 5, 11 and 12, and at 2 p.m. Sundays Oct. 6 and 13.

"AUSTIN POWERS IN GOLDMEMBER": The third installment in the ongoing saga of Austin Powers, superspy, is a heartily amusing, crude night at the movies, either more or less entertaining than either of its two predecessors. There are reams of celebrity cameos in this one, involving Very Big Stars. Try not to find out who they are beforehand, you'll have more fun that way. Michael Caine makes a fitting Daddy Austin, Mini-Me is just abused this time around, the jokes are just as crass and not always funny, but — what a blessing — Austin Powers doesn't drink Fat Bastard's poop. And at the end of round three, we have to concede that Mike Myers, unrecognizable in his latest guise as Dutch villain Goldmember, is indeed a comic genius. — M. Pols. (PG-13: sexual innuendo, crude humor and language.) 1 hour, 20 minutes. B

"BARBERSHOP": An imperfect but beguiling film about a day in the life of a Chicago barbershop. The owner, Calvin (Ice Cube), is debating selling the family business so he can do his own thing. But as he prepares to hand it over to the local loan shark, he starts to get how important it is to the neighborhood. Not an earthshaking premise, but a cozy one. Director Tim Story lacks the control to keep the overly broad comedy in check (there's an entirely wasteful subplot involving the theft of an ATM machine) or to stop his more boisterous performers (Eve, Cedric the Entertainer) from chewing the scenery. But it's a sweet comedy nonetheless. — M. Pols. (PG-13: language, sexual content and brief drug references.) 1 hour, 42 minutes. B-

"BLUE CRUSH": To pare it down, this story is about Anne Marie (Kate Bosworth), a really cute Maui surfer girl with a really big hang-up and a really cute football player who may rescue her and a really big "pipeline" competition that will decide her future. The cinematography and legions of stunt-surfers take us inside, beneath, over and under the waves. Don't be shy about oooohing and ahhhhing at the amazing surfing shots. As for the plot, feel free to hoot in derision. — R. Moore. (PG-13: sexual content, teen partying, language and a fight.) 1 hour, 44 minutes. C-

"THE BOURNE IDENTITY": Director Doug Liman ("Swingers," "Go") revitalizes the thriller genre with this brisk adaptation of Robert Ludlum's novel about a spy with amnesia. Matt Damon makes a very fine Jason Bourne, conveying both his strengths (martial arts, ruthless planning, excellent language skills) and his weaknesses (disorientation, desperation about his future, and a soft spot for kids that no spy should ever have). "Run Lola Run" star Franka Potente plays his love interest, and the chemistry between the two of them seems genuine. The script is intelligent, the story engaging and there's never a dull moment. Hallelujah! — M. Pols. (PG-13: violence and some language.) 2 hours, 1 minute. A-

"THE BUSINESS OF FANCYDANCING": It's a mixed blessing. Writer/director Sherman Alexie has crafted an intelligent and well-written film about a gay American Indian writer's return to the reservation after his friend kills himself. That Alexie has made such a movie, one that asks more questions than answers, is quite an achievement. Unfortunately, the lack of resources behind the film are sometimes glaring, especially the overused technique of shooting the movie on video rather than on film. These obstacles make you never forget that you're watching a film. But to the movie's credit, Evan Adams is convincing in the role of the self-centered poet whose homecoming isn't greeted with open arms. — R. Myers. (NR: language, sexuality, some violence.) 1 hour, 43 minutes. C+

"THE CHATEAU": This fresh twist to the ugly American vs. surly French confrontation is a delightfully bittersweet culture-clash comedy. Paul Rudd stars as Graham, a sweet-natured slacker. His older adopted brother, Allen (Romany Malco), is a slick entrepreneur. The brothers are reunited when the noble French relative they never knew dies and leaves them his ancient chateau. Upon arrival at the chateau in rural France, they find their existence is unknown by the staff who is not glad to see them. What Graham and Allen had not anticipated is that the chateau is in a decrepit state and that the count was penniless. If what's funny is frequently hilarious, then what's nasty truly stings, and the film is honest enough not to tie up everything with a ribbon. — K. Thomas. (R: strong language) 1 hour, 32 minutes. B-

"CITY BY THE SEA": A Manhattan homicide detective (Robert De Niro) investigates the murder of a small-time drug dealer from his hometown of Long Beach, Long Island. Turns out the main suspect is his drug-addicted son (James Franco), derelict at least in part because Daddy wasn't around when he was a boy. Based on a true story, with ample Hollywood distortions to pretty real life up — including the addition of a cute grandson who gets dumped on De Niro's doorstep. Pouting and chewing into his Long Island accent, Franco goes for the Hamlet in his role, while De Niro plays his role more like Brian Keith in "Family Affair," frustrated, flummoxed and a little funny, with his mouth twisted in a wry knot. Frances McDormand is good as De Niro's girlfriend, but the part is too minor for her talents. — M. Pols. (R: language, drug use and some violence.) 1 hour, 48 minutes. C+

"THE COUNTRY BEARS": The historic Country Bear Hall, former home to the popular Country Bears band that broke up a decade ago, is on the verge of being torn down by an evil banker (Christopher Walken). Meanwhile, a furry "boy" named Beary, raised in a human household, wonders why he feels so different and sets out to find the musical icons with whom he identifies. Days before the wrecking ball is to arrive, Beary and head bear Henry get the old tour bus out of mothballs to round up other group members for a concert to save the hall. The growing group is pursued by a pair of yokel police officers (Daryl "Chili" Mitchell and Diedrich Bader) who believe the musicians have kidnapped Beary. — V. Kuklenski. (G) 1 hour, 28 minutes. B

"FEARDOTCOM": This grisly little horror show is nothing if not lively and stylish. The premise is pure baloney — a mad scientist sets up a torture site that causes the users to die of their worst phobia. Oscar nominee Stephen Rea slums it as a the mad doc in this wild mix of "Seven," "Blair Witch," "Videodrome" and a few "Elm Streets." Stephen Dorff and Natascha McElhone co-star. — G. Lovell. (R: extreme violence, profanity, nudity.) 1 hour, 38 minutes. C

"THE GOOD GIRL": "Friends" star Jennifer Aniston doesn't crack a smile in this dark comedy about a married woman who's bored with her life in Texas and winds up having a fling with a 22-year-old clerk (played winningly by Jake Gyllenhaal). Aniston is quite good, showing she has the acting chops, but the film is less moving than the topic it explores — the lives and loves of the working class. — M. Pols. (R: sexuality, some language and drug content.) 1 hour, 33 minutes. B

"I AM TRYING TO BREAK YOUR HEART": Photographer Sam Jones set out to make a documentary about Wilco making a new album. Things went a little awry. The label declined to release the record. The fans started to wonder what was going on. The band's resident noodge either got fired or quit. So Jones ended up with some interesting material, better than your average backstage video stuff. But he never quite manages to blend his lovely visual style with the drama on the screen. He's better at artful shots of the band against the Chicago skyline than he is at telling a story. Still, if you were captivated by "Yankee Hotel Foxtrot," the classic album that eventually emerged from all the brouhaha, you're likely to be equally smitten with the film. — M. Pols. (NR) 1 hour, 32 minutes. B

"THE LAST KISS" ("L'Ultimo Bacio"): This lively Italian movie is being billed as a romantic comedy. Harumph. There's certainly romance, and some comedy, but this is closer to a brutal war movie, set within the battle of the sexes. The soldiers on these front lines are a group of young marrieds and almost marrieds, doing hand-to-hand combat over issues of commitment, fidelity and responsibility. Our so-called 29-year-old hero, Stefano, is bored with his pregnant girlfriend, so he starts a flirtation with a luscious but vapid high school student. Writer/director Gabriele Muccino's take on relationships is acute and refreshingly honest, but so scathing that it may make most of the audience feel like kissing off dating altogether. — M. Pols. (R: language, sexuality and some drug use.) 1 hour, 57 minutes. B"LILO & STITCH": With so many 3-D offerings, this latest Disney release is here to remind audiences of the pure pleasures of flatness. It's happy/cool/weird in ways only a cartoon can be. Underneath all that cartoon craziness, however, some real emotions flash. Lilo (Daveigh Chase) is a young Hawaiian girl feeling disconnected since she and her older sister, Nani (Tia Carrere), lost their parents. Stitch, the freakish creation of an evil alien scientist, has escaped to Earth, but the pursuit is on. Lilo adopts Stitch as an ugly little creature no one else would want, and the love and friendship that blooms between them teaches them both important lessons about life. — T. Maurstad. (PG: mild action.) 1 hour, 25 minutes. B

"LOVELY & AMAZING": Writer/director Nicole Holofcener's slender follow-up to "Walking and Talking" is biting, bitter and filled with zingy dialogue and telling moments. The plot isn't much, just the travails of a family of modern-day women trying to make their way in image-conscious Los Angeles. Catherine Keener shines as the despicably self-involved Michelle, while her co-stars Emily Mortimer and Brenda Blethyn, playing her actress sister and silly, vain mom respectively, do a fine job as well. Unfortunately, the most interesting subplot, involving the family's adopted 8-year-old African-American daughter (the astoundingly natural Raven Goodwin), gets short shrift in favor of chick-issue territory already thoroughly covered by Bridget Jones. — M. Pols. (R: language, nudity.) 1 hour, 31 minutes. B

"MAD LOVE": The opening of Vicente Aranda's fact-based historical film of sexual obsession, has the elderly Joan, embers of devotion still ablaze in her eyes, talking about a memory of the man she loved who brought her to ruin. This sets the tone for an often watchable, though goofy and lurid, blast of a costume drama. Eighteen-year-old Joan is sent to Brussels by her mother, Queen Isabella — the same one who sent Columbus on his voyage — to marry the luscious archduke of Austria. It's all part of a dynastic game until Joan sees Philip the Handsome (Daniele Liotti), the man she is to marry, and she is instantly enamored. Philip is aroused, too, but his appetite is for power. — E. Mitchell. (R: much lustful coupling and bloody 15th century warfare.) 1 hour, 57 minutes. C

"MEN IN BLACK II": Director Barry Sonnenfeld has tackled the sequel to his surprise 1997 blockbuster "Men in Black" much like a vacation-bound man determined not to leave anything out of his duffel. As is the case with any overstuffed suitcase, more is occasionally less, but there are some extras in there that prove to be godsends. The plot is a mess, but do you really care? Tommy Lee Jones and Will Smith continue to delight, the pace is brisk, the gadgetry intriguing, the villain (Lara Flynn Boyle) suitably amusing, and there are some nifty comic moments I wouldn't mind seeing again. — M. Pols. (PG-13: sci-fi action violence and some provocative humor.) 1 hour, 28 minutes. B"MINORITY REPORT": Not a great movie, but plenty good enough for right now. Tom Cruise plays a detective in 2054, who relies on the premonitions of three "pre-cogs" to stop murders before they happen. He gets caught in his own trap when one of them (Samantha Morton) fingers him as a future murderer. With Colin Farrell as a Department of Justice dude sent to investigate the "pre-crime" department. Born from a short story by sci-fi writer Philip K. Dick, and as such, sings a strong note of Big Brother oppression. But inside its cloak of futuristic darkness beats the heart of director Steven Spielberg, tender, fatherly and optimistic. The plot thins at the end, but this is a festival of cool, from its gadgets to its sun-bleached cinematography. — M. Pols. (PG-13: violence, brief language, some sexuality and drug content.) 2 hours, 25 minutes. A-

"MONSOON WEDDING": An accomplished and entrancing blend of comedy and drama from director Mira Nair ("Mississippi Masala"). Over four days, a flustered Punjabi patriarch prepares for an arranged marriage between his only daughter and an engineer from Houston. Unfortunately the bride is still in love with her married lover, and her spinster cousin is about to drop a bombshell on the family. As thoroughly satisfying, subtle, steamy and balanced between serious and joyous as the best weddings actually are. — M. Pols. (R: language, including some sex-related dialogue.) 1 hour, 54 minutes. A-

"MOSTLY MARTHA": Martina Gedeck is Martha, an obsessive head chef of a Hamburg restaurant. Her brittle perfectionism (she loudly berates customers who complain) spurs her forgiving boss to put her in therapy, where the psychologist learns nothing more from the chef than her recipes. Cooking is clearly the only way Martha knows how to give. When Martha must take in 8-year-old niece Lina (Maxime Foerste), her life begins to open up as she dutifully takes care of the girl. When Mario (Sergio Castellitto), a lively Italian chef, is hired to assist her, Martha sees him as a reckless interloper. But Mario has an appetite for life that Martha sorely lacks and they, too, are drawn together. This romantic comedy satisfies our hunger for relationship yarns while tantalizing us with dishes we can almost taste. — B. Westbrook. (PG: thematic material and mild language) 1 hour, 46 minutes. (In German with English subtitles.) A-

"MY BIG FAT GREEK WEDDING": Toula (Nia Vardalos) is considered a freak of nature in the Chicago Greek community because she's still single at 30. eavers eager to be part of Cal Symphony program

EVIN BEAVERS has just been selected as the California Symphony's Young erican Composer in Resi- e, and he's already one of ogram's biggest fans. 's a wonderful program," 31-year-old composer said in one call from Austin, where on the music faculty at the ersity of Texas. "I know this fantastic orchestra from dings I've heard of them. just the idea of working the orchestra before a pre- e — to be able to come in e them play the piece have real risks — that's thing a composer rarely the opportunity to do." eavers is the fifth com- er in residence in the pro- launched by California phony music director y Jekowsky 10 years ago. re were more than 90 appli- s for the current post, but kowsky says Beavers' origi- voice set him apart from others.

"I was just overwhelmed by amount of talent that pre- ented itself this year," said owsky. "This bodes so well the future of American mu- But Kevin has something lly special. He's already d his voice, and I'm really king forward to hearing it velop."

Jekowsky, whose panel of sors for the program in- des John Adams and John rigliano, says he tries to se- applicants who will benefit st from the residency.

"It has to be someone who's dy, and Kevin is," he says. 's right there on the launch- pad. He writes deep, attrac- tive, interesting, varied music. Stylistically, you can't put him in a category."

Beavers, who grew up in rural West Virginia, has already established himself as a serious composer. He studied at West Virginia University and the University of Michigan, where his teachers included composer William Bolcom. In the last few years, he's received commissions from the Tanglewood Music Festival, Detroit Civic Orchestra and the Santa Barbara Symphony. His next work will be a violin concerto, which will receive its premiere next season by the St. Louis Symphony.

The composer says he submitted several scores for Jekowsky's consideration. "I was a little startled when he called to interview me," Beavers admits. "But we just clicked. We talked a lot about music, and it was clear right away we were going to be able to work together."

Beavers will write three works for the symphony over the next three years. He'll come to Walnut Creek in February for a reading of the first work, which will have its premiere in May. The composer says he has no idea what form the new work will take, although he's already mulling over some ideas.

"At some point I'd like to make a response to the cultural climate," he says. "I'm a peace advocate, and I want to address all the saber-rattling we're hearing these days. Then again, that might be something I steer clear of and just talk about with people. It's really still up in the air."

He's sure about one thing — he's looking forward to three years of work with Jekowsky and the orchestra. "I'm always looking for opportunities to write for great musicians, and I like the idea of building a rapport," says Beavers. "With most orchestras, you see them one time and then you're gone. In this program, you really get to know the musicians, and that opens up lines of communication. I think that's so important."

The California Symphony's subscription season doesn't open until Nov. 3 at the Dean Lesher Regional Center for the Arts. But the orchestra will play its annual outdoor program on Sunday at Concord's Todos Santos Plaza. Jekowsky will conduct the free concert, which begins at 6 p.m. For more details call the California Symphony at 925-280-2490.

LORRAINE HUNT LIEBERSON is one of the world's great vocalists, and there doesn't seem to be anything she can't sing. From Handel arias to John Adams' 21st century "El Niño," Lieberson's lustrous mezzo-soprano is always beautiful and deeply affecting. Lieberson sings music by Handel, Ravel, Schubert, Mahler and Debussy in a Cal Performances recital, Sunday at Hertz Hall on the UC Berkeley campus. 510-642-9988.

CAL PERFORMANCES also hosts the Mark Morris Dance Group on Oct. 3-6 at Zellerbach Hall. This is one of the season's most promising events: Morris has fabulous taste in music, and he always dances to live accompaniment. This program features a world premiere set to William Walton's "Facade." Also on the bill are "Resurrection," choreographed to Richard Rodgers' "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue," and "Foursome," set to Erik Satie's "Gnossiennes" and Hummel's "Seven Hungarian Dances." Morris' "A Lake," set to Haydn's Concerto No. 2 in D, and "Lucky Charms," to Ibert's "Divertissement," complete the program. Members of the Berkeley Symphony orchestra will perform under the direction of Robert Cole. 510-642-9988.

MARK YOUR CALENDARS: Magnificat performs an all-Charpentier program, Saturday at Berkeley's First Congregational Church. 415-979-4500. Organist Paul Jacobs plays works by Messiaen and others, Sunday at Grace Cathedral. 866-468-3399. The Ives String Quartet plays the music of Dvorak, Puccini, Schubert and Charles Ives, Sunday at the Julia Morgan Theatre. 415-392-4400. Michael Tilson Thomas's "Urban Legends" receives its world premiere by the San Francisco Symphony, Wednesday-Oct. 5 at Davies Hall. 415-864-6000. The Left Coast Chamber Ensemble opens its 10th season with music by Stravinsky, Janacek and Britten, Oct. 7 at the Green Room. 415-642-8054. The San Francisco Opera presents Verdi's "Otello," Oct. 9-Nov. 1. 415-864-3330.

film is sorely missing in this bloated sequel. Director Robert Rodriguez amps everything up — from special effects to the number of characters — in a desperate attempt to make a movie that's bigger, brighter and faster. It's all that, but it certainly isn't better. Regardless, the self-titled spy kids and their sleuthy parents (Antonio Banderas and Carla Gugino) are fun to watch, and there's a nifty gadget or two in this story about the hunt for a device that can shut down all electricity on Earth. — C. Lemire (PG: action sequences and brief rude humor.) 1 hour, 40 minutes. C-

"STEALING HARVARD": Tom Green stars in this banal comedy about a nice guy who turns to crime to try to earn the money to send a poor niece (Tammy Blanchard) to Harvard. Green hams it up in a frantic effort to electroshock this farce to life. He never succeeds. "Stealing Harvard" isn't grand theft; it's not even petty pilfering. All it steals is the viewer's time. — R. Moore. (PG-13: crude and sexual humor, language, drug references.) 1 hour, 23 minutes. D

"STUART LITTLE 2": The gang returns for another reasonably fun effort. The animals, from Snowbell the cat to Stuart himself — a dead ringer for Michael J. Fox, who voices the character — are cute, but the choice of Melanie Griffith to voice Margalo, the bird Stuart develops a crush on, borders on the creepy. Innovative in a visual sense, but painfully outdated from a mother's perspective: Geena Davis fits every stereotype of a pesky, annoying 1950s mom. Moreover, this movie is so short, it will only distract your kids for a little over an hour. Surely today's working parents deserve more for their dollar. — M. Pols. (PG: brief mild language.) 1 hour, 12 minutes. C+

"SWIMFAN": Michael Douglas' company was partially responsible for producing "Swimfan." Could the whole plan here have been to produce something so bad that it makes 'Fatal Attraction" look like a classic? Madison Bell (Erika Christensen) is the high-strung new girl in school who lures star swimmer Ben Cronin (Jesse Bradford) into a one-night stand. Later she boils over with need, than rage. Madison, it turns out, is capable of extreme actions involving controlled substances, baseball bats, SUVs and scalpels. The script is filled with unintended verbal hilarity. — B. Strauss. (PG-13: violence, sex and language.) 1 hour, 24 minutes. C

"TADPOLE": A slight and sprightly new farce about a pompous, Voltaire-obsessed 15-year-old prep school student (Aaron Stanford) who believes himself to be in love with his stepmother, Eve (Sigourney Weaver). During the weekend in which he plans to steal her away from his father (a very funny John Ritter), he accidentally falls into bed with her best friend (Bebe Neuwirth). The movie, shot on digital video, looks like your Uncle Bob made it, but it's got some delightful comic moments and Stanford is a real find. — M. Pols. (PG-13: sexual content, mature thematic elements and language.) 1 hour, 17 minutes. B

"THIRTEEN CONVERSATIONS ABOUT ONE THING": More accurately, 13 tedious conversations about nothing. One of those movies, like "Magnolia," that interweaves stories about characters we know will ultimately be connected. When they work, we leave with a sense of something bigger, but this indie film from writer/director Jill Sprecher only adds up to a muted, fractured, pretentious bore. With Matthew McConaughey, John Turturro, Clea DuVall and Alan Arkin as some of the various characters enduring story lines that are meant to teach them about Life. Only Arkin shines. — M. Pols. (R: language and brief drug use.) 1 hour, 43 minutes C-

"24 HOUR PARTY PEOPLE": This film serves as an ode to the postpunk label Factory Records while tracking its rise and fall. This is pop England at its headiest and most volatile period — 1976 through the early '90s — since the Beatles era, seen through the jaundiced, admittedly single-minded point of view of Tony Wilson, played with a stinging, unctuous vitality by Steve Coogan, a man both inebriated by his love of the time and determined to plunder it. Director Michael Winterbottom sprints through the obstacle course of postpunk with such notable athleticism that you can forgive him for knocking over a couple of hurdles. And whatever its factual flaws, the movie is spiritually accurate. — E. Mitchell. (R: strong language, drug use, sexuality and angry fits of vandalism and violence that reflect the era the film depicts.) 1 hour, 55 minutes. A-

"UNDISPUTED": Heavyweight boxing champ "Iceman" Chambers (Ving Rhames) is sent to a maximum-security prison after a rape conviction. It isn't long before he catches wind of Monroe Hutchen (Wesley Snipes), a Zen warrior of sorts and prison hero serving a life sentence who's been the top-ranking champ in the interprison Boxing Program for 10 years. Enter Emmanuel "Mendy" Ripstein (Peter Falk), a mobster with gangland experience as a boxing promoter. Smelling a chance to promote one last great fight, he pulls strings with the mob and the Department of Corrections to arrange a face-off between the two. This is primarily a character piece, and it works well as one. And while Snipes and Rhames give strong performances, it's Falk who steals the show — G. Dowell. (R: language, violence.) 1 hour, 30 minutes. B-

"XXX": Xander Cage (Vin Diesel), aka XXX, is supposed to be a new breed of action hero, the anti-Bond, the hip, multicultural, tattooed dude. OK, we'll buy that. But why not update the genre a bit while we're at it? Diesel is an appealing star, and some of the action stunts are cool, but director Rob Cohen ("The Fast and the Furious") has slapped together a product rife with cliches, lapses in logic and the usual cookie-cutter hissing villains (Russian dissidents). The romantic lead (Italian actress Asia Argento) is straight out of a B-movie, the quips writer Rich Wilkes has penned for Diesel are not nearly as funny as they ought to be, and essentially, this is the same old/same old, just dressed up with body art. — M. Pols. (PG-13: violence, nonstop action sequences, sensuality, drug content and language.) 1 hour, 55 minutes. C

, and is following in Ron's otsteps."

Wilcox gave this insightful erview of Oakland's changg politics during his tenure at S: "It evolved. First you d a white power structure — n, Knowland et al — running ings. Then you had black olticians emerging, and they ere pretty much stuck together. hen you had black politicians t being afraid to criticize one other. Now it's evolved to here black voters feel confiient enough to elect a white ayor."

Wilcox says of his beat, "I ed covering it all. And if 're in radio news, KCBS is place to be."

Did the bearded Wilcox ever nt to work in TV? "I like the onymity of radio. I've seen people shopping, and peogawk at them. I don't want

Wilcox, who did some anchoring as well on KCBS, says, "Besides, I can get behind a mike and still talk to a million people."

(KCBS' "cume" — the total number of listeners reached each week — is most often the highest of any Bay Area radio station.)

When Wilcox arrived in the Bay Area fresh out of the University of Arizona, he went to work at now-defunct Oakland radio station KDIA. After six years there, he moved over to S.F. and KCBS: "Bob Melrose and I are the last of the original group who started the all-news format at the studios in the Sheraton Palace."

A few years later, KCBS moved to Embarcadero One, thence to its current studios in "Gray Rock," the KPIX building, three years ago.

There was a disconnect between the East Bay-based Wilcox and the rest of the station staff. For example, when I ask Wilcox about legendary, avuncular long-time KCBS general manager Ray Barnett, he said, "About the only time I saw Ray was at the annual staff Christmas party. I was always over on this side of the Bay."

Self-starter Wilcox, 55, admits he was a bit of a "lone wolf," but adds, "KCBS and I were a good fit."

Wilcox was based in the station's downtown Oakland bureau in the Alameda County administration building, and was among the first reporters to arrive on the scene after the Cypress Structure collapsed. "I still remember how eerie it was, with all those floodlights. And how quiet it was except for the generators."

The Bay Area's increasing traffic, says Wilcox, was what finally drove (no pun intended) him and his hospital-administrator wife away — especially with her 90-minute commute each way from Hayward to a hospital job on the Peninsula.

Which leads into my asking Wilcox for any East Bay predictions he might have:

"Unless various jurisdictions and politicians start working more closely on comprehensive solutions, the East Bay's highways are going to get even more clogged."

So, what's Wilcox going to do in his immediate future without all those fires, accidents, and city council meetings to cover?

"There's a big bioterrorism drill coming up in a few weeks in Tucson," he says evenly, smiling. "I'm going to cover it for KCBS."

At the end of our lunch, I ask Wilcox for a personal evaluation of his 27 years of covering this side of the Bay for KCBS. He paused, considered his words, then summed it up by using an old — and apt — radio phrase:

"I laid down a good track."

Tickets are $10 general; $8 for seniors and students. Tickets are available at the door, or may be reserved by calling 510-235-7800, ext. 4274.

A SUNDAY GOSPEL: "Caught Up," an original gospel play in two acts by Richmond's Beverly Brown, will be performed at 5 p.m. Sunday at the Richmond Memorial Convention Center, 403 Civic Center Plaza. Debbie Harris directs the play, which features Elaine Hunter, Sarah Hopkins and J-Red.

Tickets are $22, with group, senior and children discounts available. Advance sales encouraged. Call 869-3733. Tickets are also available at Gospel Sounds in Richmond, Jones and Harris in Richmond, and Reid's Records in Berkeley.

"Caught Up" follows Brown's play, "How Is It in Hell?," which was presented twice last summer in Richmond and Berkeley.

MOTHER-DAUGHTER DUO: "Skunk" by John Angell Grant is one of four short plays Oct. 4, 5, 6, 10, 11 and 12 at OnStage Theatre, 2050 Oak Park Blvd., Pleasant Hill. Curtain times are 8 p.m. Thursday; 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, and 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Aside from the pungent name — if that's the word I'm really reaching for — it is distinguished — I'm on surer ground with that one — by an actress-and-director combo.

Jenny Rastegar is directing her mother, Dorothea Rastegar, and Rhonda Taylor in "Skunk."

Grant describes his play as " ... two upscale tennis matrons lunching at a suburban country club find they have more in common than they thought when the conversation turns to money, heroin and child abuse ... ."

I asked Dorothea what Jenny's director's notes were like in rehearsals of a play with these provocative themes.

"It was pretty funny," she replied through bursts of laughter. Somebody could make another short play with that mother-daughter dialogue alone.

In addition to "Skunk," the evening's block of plays includes "Lip Service" by Howard Korder; "Pvt. Wars" by James McClure, and "Is That the Bus to Pittsburg?" by Jean Lenox Toddie.

Incidentally, Jenny Rastegar doffs her director's hat and hops aboard the cast of "Bus" in the windup. Dorothea stops acting and directs "Did You Ever Go to PS 43?" ending its run on the same stage this weekend. And you thought you'd been busy.

Tickets are $12 general; $10 for seniors and students. Call 925-944-9006.

Send items to Jack Tucker at 4301 Lakeside Drive, Richmond, CA, 94806; fax to 510-262-2776; e-mail to jtucker@cctimes.com, or call 510-262-2768.

THE MERCEDES-BENZ E-Class sets standards when it comes to safety, comfort, driving sophistication, and prestige. And, the 2003 version continues this trend.

New Mercedes-Benz E-Class in a class of its own

TOM KEANE

MOTOR MATTERS

They did it again. It seems the Mercedes-Benz people are frequently introducing a new vehicle, and this time the spotlight is on the 2003 E-Class sedan.

The E-Class is Mercedes-Benz's most successful luxury sedan, representing about 25 percent of their sales. Considering that this manufacturer has vehicles of all types, shapes and sizes, 25 percent signifies an excellent following.

The reason is simple: The E-Class sets standards when it comes to safety, comfort, driving sophistication, and prestige.

I put safety at the top of the list. Mercedes-Benz has continuously been a pioneer in safety, and the E-Class is loaded with protective features.

This car has about 50 microprocessors (chips) hooked into sensors that can either protect the occupants in a crash or help avoid an accident.

One feature that fascinates me concerns the brakes. A chip monitors driving habits, and when it notices the driver has quickly removed his or her foot from the accelerator pedal, it begins the braking process even before the driver's foot gets to the brake pedal

This feature enables the car to stop in a shorter distance, perhaps averting an accident.

This car also has straight-line traction control, and ESP stability control. And just in case — there are eight airbags. In the event of an accident, within a millisecond, a chip determines the force of a crash and calculates the appropriate force of the airbag explosion.

Other chips tell the driver when an oil change is required, which could be far less than the customary 3,000-mile oil change.

The E-Class comes in two versions: a $48,950 E320 model and a $54,850 E500 design. The E320 has a 3.2-liter V6 engine, the E500 a 5.0-liter V8.

The stronger engine produces 302 horsepower compared to 221 horsepower for the V6. When I accelerated, the power was exhilarating

In spite of its new sporty appearance and elliptical headlights, the E-Class is unmistakably a Mercedes-Benz. The engineers told me the body is stronger and now has larger crumple zones

The real enjoyment of these sedans, however, is in the quality of the ride and handling. Both cars are solid vehicles that hug the road in any situation, and neither lean nor sway in hard turns.

THE ALL-NEW R Series chassis, produced by Workhorse, gives motorhome drivers a top-notch ride, handling and performance.

MOTOR MATTERS

Workhorse introduces a new diesel-pusher chassis

MOTOR MATTERS

Motorhome buyers have a new chassis choice.

Chassis manufacturers have provided motorhome shoppers with a wide variety of choices.

All kinds of motorhomes, from lower-cost gasoline-powered units up to elaborate diesel-pusher bus-type models, can be built on a chassis specifically tailored to that type of coach. This not only provides the buyer with more selection, it means each coach should be well-matched to its underpinnings.

Workhorse Custom Chassis took over the General Motors motorhome chassis business several years ago and has continued making a name for itself in the gasoline-powered motorhome market. Perhaps naturally enough, Workhorse has entered the fast growing diesel-pusher motorhome business with the introduction of its all-new R Series chassis.

Workhorse did its homework and partnered with Cummins/Onan and ArvinMeritor to assemble a top-notch array of components.

The system, which Workhorse calls its fully integrated SmartChassis, strives to take advantage of all the separate component strengths and combine them into a no-compromise chassis that gives the coach builders an ideal platform to start with.

It also gives the end-user a coach based on a chassis with top-notch ride, handling and performance.

JEFF JOHNSTON
Rolling Home

The new R-series chassis is available in 28,000- and 31,000-pound gross vehicle weight rating models, which are rated at 31,000- and 43,000-pounds gross combination weight rating, respectively.

Three different Cummins six-cylinder diesel engines and both solid-axle and independent-suspensions are among the available options.

In addition, the new Onan Coach Command is an all-new, fully integrated coach management system that moves motorhome electronic controls well into the next generation of sophistication.

Engine options include the Cummins ISC base-model 330 hp/950 pound-foot unit and the upgrade 350 horsepower/1,050 pound-foot unit.

The engine in our test coach was the top-end Cummins ISL rated at 400 hp at 2,000 rpm and 1,200 pound-foot at 1,300 rpm.

All engines are mated to an Allison 3000MH six-speed automatic, a tried-and-proven model with a terrific reputation.

Engineers can opt for side or rear radiator placement, a feature which further expands coach design possibilities. ArvinMeritor was the source for the new chassis' suspension systems.

The traditional solid axle with airbag suspension rear unit has received some tweaks and changes that improve vehicle stability and performance. All axle-to-suspension mounting points are polyurethane or rubber, depending on the application, for vibration isolation and flexibility.

A side benefit of the rear suspension design is allowance for closer engine and transmission placement, and movement of the powertrain lower in the chassis. This makes for a more compact package from the rear axle to the back of the coach, as well as providing greater floor plan flexibility in the engine area.

The base model is a solid-axle unit with dual airbag suspension, twin leading arms and a transverse track bar. Applications that call for Independent Front Suspension can use the RideStar IFS which employs dual airbags, independent unequal-length upper and lower A-arms and a double-idler steering linkage to eliminate bump steer.

Ball-joint-mounted spindle assemblies with unitized lubed-for-life bearings reduce maintenance. The IFS is rated for a 55-degree wheel cut angle, a feature we personally observed during our introductory drive.

All R-series chassis use air drum brakes in back and air discs up front, and the rear brakes also include ABS. The Workhorse partnership with Cummins/Onan resulted in the use of Onan's Coach Command.

In brief, this system delivers seamless power management, provides network diagnostics and offers an array of wireless communication capabilities for the R-series chassis.

Coach Command ties together all of the motorhome parts that operate from either 12-volts DC or 120-volts AC current. The generator, shore power cord and inverter — if available — are at the heart of the Coach Command system.

It also ties into the air conditioners, holding tanks, refrigerator, the engine electronic controls and monitors, the water heater, the stereo, satellite TV, full GPS navigation capability, online Internet connectivity and full coach system troubleshooting via Coach Care customer assistance. All are accessed via a wireless touch-screen monitor.

The almost endless possibilities are regulated only by the design engineers' creativity. Motorhome shoppers can look forward to an exciting new array of sophisticated, high-tech coaches with convenience and practicality features only dreamed of until now. It's going to be an exciting ride.

Cigarette lighter po supply overworke

KNIGHT RIDDER NEWSPAPER

Q I have an issue with my wife's 1999 Dodge Caravan. The cigarette lighter or power supply on the dashboard does not work

It had been successfully powering a hands-free cellphone holder but it hasn't worked since the outlet was used to power up an inflatable mattress.

The hands-free cellphone holder does work in my car so I'm confident this isn't the issue.

The first place I have looked were the fuses, which were OK after inspection but I replaced them anyway. Is there somewhere else I can check without having to take it to a dealer?

Would it be worthwhile to purchase an auto reference book?

Hugo Enriquez, Clayton, Calif.

A It sounds like you might have accidentally overworked the lighter circuit, which isn't difficult to do with a current-hungry inflator pump.

Start by checking the Caravan's rear cigarette lighter for proper operation.

If it's OK, we know fuse No. 8 and the lighter-accessory relay (both located in the under-hood power distribution center) are OK, as both lighters share these components

If not, and you're sure you've checked the correct fuse, renewing the relay may be a cost-effective gamble.

If the rear lighter functions OK this leaves the front lighter socket or its wiring connector as the most likely cause of the problem.

Check the front socket for a burned or fatigued contact (at the center-bottom of the socket — compare it with the rear one as necessary).

If it looks good, take a look at the wiring connector at its back side, for a burned or loose connection

If the problem isn't found here, it's time to seek professional help to check and repair a possible faulty inline connector between the power

969 Cougar Eliminator: car with lots of punch

MOTOR MATTERS

THE COUGAR Eliminator was made by Mercury in 1969 and 1970 only. Owner of this 1969 original bought it new and raced it regularly on drag strips throughout the country.

next best thing to having a friend places is having a mother employed ifornia Lincoln-Mercury dealership.

ker and demanded that his car be cury produced the Cougar Elimina-1969 and 1970. Stagner's Elim-s delivered in June 1969 with the repower Cobra Jet 428-cubic-inch ine beneath the functional hood window sticker, which Stagner still es, indicates $3,694.31 as the base

the Eliminator package, the Elim-Decor Group, as well as all the other e such as power steering, power
, tinted glass and hood lock pins, e of the car soared to $4,485.30.
e Stagner's mother was a dealership employee, he got a deal and paid only the base price. One of the line items on the window sticker that brings a chuckle today is the $1.33 charge for the four gallons of gasoline he put in the car.

When Stagner claimed his muscular orange Cougar, he found it prominently parked in the showroom where the dealer was milking it for every last bit of publicity. He drove the prize home to San Mateo and then the fun began.

The only alteration from factory stock Stagner made was the installation of traction bars.

Stagner became a regular competitor at Northern California drag strips until he went to school in Boston. He drove his Cougar cross-country and, when not in school, he competed at local New England drag strips.

After graduation, he drove his high-powered car back to California. Soon thereafter, Stagner went to another school in Oklahoma City. Of course, he drove his Cougar there, towing a U-Haul trailer, and competed at the local Midwest drag strips.

"The amazing thing," Stagner said, "is the car gets 11 miles per gallon regardless of the load or speed. It doesn't seem to care."

During the first seven years that he owned the car, Stagner entered his outstanding Cougar against Chevelles, Camaros, GTXs, Road Runners, GTOs and 442s in 47 races and took home 45 trophies.

In 1976, while driving to work one day after he had retired the Mercury from racing, the car shuddered and Stagner steered it off to the shoulder of the road.

"At first I thought the power steering had failed," he said. "There was a big hole in the side of the block."

A new short block from the factory was ordered and, after a lot of money was thrown at the problem, the Cougar was restored to mechanical good health.

After more years as a daily driver the Cougar was tucked away on its 111-inch wheelbase in a Southern California garage where it hibernated from 1985 to 1998. That hiatus explains the remarkably low mileage of less than 91,000.

Probably the vehicle's best-known features were the sequential turn-signal taillights with 24 vertical chrome separations on each side of the license plate.

The all-black interior stayed completely original, including the speakers in the front doors. Only the headliner has been replaced.

Stagner said replacing the package shelf under the rear window is next on the never-ending list of things to do.

The standard-issue spoiler on the trunk lid is for show, according to Stagner. The chin spoiler under the front bumper actually works.

At 135 mph the engine is turning only 6,000 rpm.

"It's been a reliable car," Stagner notes, assessing that the only problems have been because it's a performance engine. "That's a small price to pay."

The original F70x14-inch tires were long ago replaced with wider radial tires. "When I punch it," Stagner said, "I want it to go."

Bridgestone introduces all-terrain tire designed for trucks and SUVs

MOTOR MATTERS

GARY MC COY
Aftermarket Reports

Light truck and SUV owners who want to upgrade their tires to the premium on- and off-highway market tire segment now have a unique option in the all-new Bridgestone Dueler A/T Revo.

The tire, introduced in August by Bridgestone/Firestone North American Tire, LLC, offers a powerful grip and smooth ride for all terrains.

Shu Ishibashi, president of Bridgestone/Firestone North American Consumer Tire Sales Group, explains, "Our new Bridgestone Dueler A/T Revo offers pickup truck and SUV owners the best of both worlds. It has a powerful grip to take on the most rugged routes, even in snow, while still providing a smooth, civilized ride on the highway."

I had the chance to test the new tire in a media introduction that Bridgestone/Firestone held at Golden Gate Fields near San Francisco.

Journalists were able to put the Dueler A/T Revo through its paces on both a wet traction stop test and a simulated road course.

It was clear from the test that Bridgestone has squarely placed its new tire to compete in the market against a similar Michelin tire.

I give the new tire a solid thumbs-up. Consumers who want to upgrade their OE tires to a more responsive model will enjoy these tires. I found them especially responsive in cornering.

And while they did well in wet traction stopping power in a test against the Michelin tire while the Michelin was certainly responsive in acceleration and grip, the Dueler A/T Revo tire demonstrated smoother cornering.

Designed using the company's exclusive UNI-T AQII technology, the new Dueler A/T Revo is built with a dual-layer tread compound for improved grip, wet and dry traction, cut resistance and braking — even when worn.

The dual-layer tread compound is an inner tread layer that is exposed as the tread wears, enabling the tire to better grip the road.

For enhanced off-road durability, the tire incorporates a two polyester body ply design. The Dueler A/T Revo comes in 27 popular, 15-, 16- and 17-inch P-metric and light truck sizes to fit a wide variety of domestic and import pickups, SUVs and light truck applications. It comes with a 50,000-mile warranty.

The tires sell for a suggested retail price of $101 to $159 and are available at participating Bridgestone dealers. For more information, visit www.bridgestonetire.com.

■ The e-Cool Auto Air Exchanger from The Exciters is an intelligent, pure electronic solution that can reduce the heat and humidity in a parked vehicle by as much as 20 degrees.

By inducting fresh air from outside into the vehicle cabin while the car or truck is parked, this innovative new product saves energy by sharply reducing the time required for an air conditioner to start cooling.

The e-Cool has minimal components and is easy to install, as it "piggybacks" onto the vehicle's existing ventilation system for a seamless, totally automatic solution. The e-Cool includes a battery "watchdog" light that provides a low vehicle battery warning.

BRIDGESTONE/FIRESTONE'S new premium all-terrain tire gets a "thumbs up" for road, especially in corners.

The e-Cool Auto Air Exchanger sells for a suggested installed price of $325. For more information, visit www.exciters.com/a_c/ecool.htm.

■ Muth Mirror Systems has introduced new Wide Angle Signal Mirrors with amber-colored chevrons. Previously, red was the only option available.

The mirrors are designed to be installed on virtually any vehicle and mounted directly onto a vehicle's exterior rearview mirror.

Professional installation is recommended and a list of installers is available at the Muth Web site

The amber version sells for $169, while the red kit sells for $149 Visit www.kwmuth.com to order, or call 800-844-6616.

the worst that occurred in the incident.

Following this sobering experience, my neighbors counted their blessings. It could have been worse, they acknowledged.

Indeed, their Tahoe had performed admirably in the accident, noted my neighbor — an engineer for an automotive supplier — as he gave me a tour of the damage.

From the vantage point of my driveway, I saw no evidence of an accident, except for the twisted metal that was formerly a bike rack on the back. On the passenger side, the damage was more evident.

Still, it was a stellar example of how vehicle's crush zones work, designed to absorb the energy from a crash, so the occupants don't. The rear bumper folded in, precisely where it was designed to.

The doors remained closed as they were supposed to. The seats traveled forward, as they were engineered to do. The cabin was virtually intact.

Remarkably, my neighbor drove the vehicle home from the accident site.

Sheer physics were also on their side. We hesitated to imagine what might have occurred if they had been driving a small car when the truck plowed into them.

Undoubtedly, we figured, a smaller vehicle would have been more substantially damaged — and the injuries might have been more serious.

The accident did point out something few drivers of sport utilities — or station wagons and minivans, for that matter — ever consider. Indeed, these utility vehicles have lots of cargo capacity behind the seats. It's one of the appeals.

People can load tall, large items or lots of small items to the ceiling. In fact, people — and I'm guilty — often fill the cargo-holds dangerously full, depriving the driver of a clear view behind the vehicle.

Even more dangerous, however, is the fact that — unlike a car, with an enclosed trunk — the space is open behind the seats of wagons, sport utilities and vans.

Even more dangerous, however, is the fact that — unlike a car, with an enclosed trunk — the space is open behind the seats of wagons, sport utilities and vans. That means anything stored behind those seats can become a projectile in an accident.

That means anything stored behind those seats can become a projectile in an accident, like the bicycle did in this case.

As I walked away from my neighbors' damaged vehicle, I shuddered to think of all the times I had carried large items in sport utilities that I was test-driving.

I once loaded a day bed, with sharp edges and pointy springs, into the back of a Lincoln Navigator, and hauled it for over an hour on the drive to my cottage in Canada.

And there was the metal baker's rack I'd carried in the rear of a Ford Expedition. And how about the metal lawn chairs I loaded into the back of the Chevrolet TrailBlazer EXT?

I'm sure my neighbors learned a lesson from their accident. So did I.

I'll be more mindful the next time I load items into the back of a sport utility, station wagon or minivan.

I'll take more care in putting the large, metal or sharp-edged items on the bottom and place softer items, like sleeping bags and duffel bags, on top. I might consider a cargo net or something else to separate the cargo bay from the passenger space.

I'll also take more care to not load the cargo area so full I can't see out the back window.

he interior atmosphere exem- quality throughout, and when es to thoughtfulness, the E- xcels.

h a power-tilt and telescop- eering wheel, plus 10-way multi-contoured seats, any- s find a comfortable driving on behind the wheel of this make the ride even more ortable, when the driver is mak- ft-hand turn, air pressure is increased on the right hand side of the seatback bolster to hold the driver steady.

And these seats will even give a massage.

My testers featured the new harman/kardon LOGIC7 sound system with 12 speakers. I sat in various seats and no matter where I was, the sound seemed to be right between my ears.

For those who need directions to their destination, the GPS navigation system has DVD capability. The phone has voice commands so the driver can keep both hands on the wheel.

The cruise control uses radar so the car maintains a safe distance from the car in front.

When parking, there's an obstacle warning system to alert the driver that there's something behind the car.

As expected, the E-Class has the latest innovations in safety, convenience and comfort.

The Mercedes-Benz people keep setting the pace in technological advancements.
